Surprise for Michelangelo
Strange Lady, Aged 109
Remember Doughnut Month
4 Added Paragraphs

—By Arthur Brisbane—

ABOUT 400 YEARS AGO Michelangelo, working on St. Peter's, complained to the Pope about dishonest contractors. Even then they delivered inferior goods.

The greatest artist that lived reminded the Pope that designing and building would do him no good unless it should benefit his soul, for he got no profit from it.

He found happiness in knowing that it would be a source of inspiration through countless centuries.

How amazed would Michelangelo be now, where he dwells in a grander cathedral, if he could know that a telephone, part of the system of Vatican City, was yesterday installed in the dome of St. Peter's. And how much more amazed if he could know that the Pope of today, sitting in the dome, could talk with that telephone across the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, to his bishops living in a far away land that Columbus discovered when Michelangelo was 17 years old.

Mrs. Francoise Levapresto celebrated yesterday her 109th birthday on Staten Island, N. Y. You will nod approvingly at the first three of her four rules of life:

"Hard work, plenty of sleep, and no worry."

But what will you say, how will you look, when you read her fourth rule:

"Always have a bottle of wine for dinner."

How could she possibly have lived to be 109 years old with a rule like that?

Here in town, please, that this is "doughnut month," and concentrate attention on a noble connection associated with American tradition and history, as thoroughly as Yankee Doodle or the Star Spangled Banner.

To make a really good doughnut is an art, a public service. To make a piece of sogginess with a hole in it is a crime against humanity.

A doughnut may be as light as froth on the waves or as heavy as remorse. Should it be made with butter or lard?

President Hoover's excellent analysis of conditions in the United States greatly increased its usefulness by four additional paragraphs added at the last moment.

Somebody in the bankers' convention, which President Hoover addressed, had suggested that the standard of living is too high in this country.

Emphatically the President repudiated the theory that the many should live meanly, to enable a few to live in luxury.

He said:

"Not only do I not accept such a theory, but, on the contrary, the whole purpose and ideal of this economic system, which is distinctive of our country, is to increase the standard of living by the adoption and the constantly widening diffusion of invention and discovery amongst the whole of our people.

"Any retreat from our American philosophy of constantly increasing standards of living becomes a retreat into perpetual unemployment and the acceptance of a concept of poverty for some large part of our people."

The "noble and manly sport" of prize fighting, permitted in spite of law by politicians that share its profits, produced one of its numerous fatalities in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on Thursday night.

"Kid" Leonard, 17 years old, who had already fought 18 other professional fights, struck "Battling" Nelson, aged 27, married, with four children. Nelson fell to the floor and died.

The young man that killed him will be held perfunctorily. The prize fighters, encouraged and permitted almost as children to engage in brutal assault, for profit, are not to blame.

The blame is with politicians that, for a share of the money, will license any indecency in defiance of law.

Gambling doesn't pay. If you doubt that statement, ask an unfortunate man, recently cashier of Charles Scribner and Sons. He confesses thefts totaling $61,000 and adds, "all but $1000 was lost in stock speculation."

Triple humiliation and regret, gambling and losing, confessing and headed for jail, DON'T GAMBLE.

King George and Queen Mary have bought five new automobiles, announcing that they do so to give employment and encourage industry. They set a good example that should be widely followed.

Esca American, in a big way if he can afford it, in a smaller way if necessary, should set

VERMONT G. O. P. PLANK FOR ENFORCEMENT

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 4 (AP)—A plank favoring rigid enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and all statutes enacted to give it effect was submitted in the Republican State convention here today by the Republican committee.

86,000 Legionnaires 'Seize' Boston

Troopers all and equals in rank, the vast horde of Legionnaires filed up the city today as 86,000 officially opened the gala convention with a spirit of "playboy."

The city and suburbs took on a holiday aspect as the veterans "deployed" to football stands, touring buses and thousands of reunions, impromptu and otherwise.

Major shook hands with Oregon, Florida slapped Mississippi on the back and Massachusetts smiled down on her guests as they swung into the spirit of the Legion.

The first real rush saw First Corps Cadets armory flooded with football fans as they sought tickets for the Harvard-Vermont game.

BODENHAMER ON JOB.

Sightseeing terminals saw more thousands clambering aboard for a peek at New England's historic shrines.

Amid the clamor, the "big boss," National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, gathered his official family around him at his Statler headquarters to tackle the massive detail for Monday's opening of the business sessions.

Commander Bodenhamer arrived last night and announced his policy of "business first, sightseeing after" as far as he was concerned.

Unemployment, and aid for disabled veterans, he cited as two of the major projects of the convention.

These two and measures for relief of dependent children of veterans form the major portion of his speech to the convention scheduled for Monday's opening.

He will tell of $5,000,000 recovered for veterans in the disability program during last year and of the great need of keeping needy children in their own homes.

Even as the early arrivals entrenched themselves in the hotels and hearts—of Boston, railroad stations, bus terminals, air stations and "the open road" gave up streams of vital humanity that will swell the ranks of the five score thousands already arrived.

Third Series Game -:- Play by Play

FIRST INNING

Athletics—Hallahan's first pitch was a perfect strike. Bishop hit the fourth pitch for a single to right. It was his first of the series. Dykes struck out. Cochrane walked. Hallahan in attempting to pick Bishop off second hit him but Frisch recovered and held Bishop at second. Simmons fanned. The crowd went crazy, it was a foul tip which Wilson caught. Foxx hit over second base, Gelbert made a great stop of the ball but couldn't get him. Miller struck out. TWO HITS. NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

Cardinals—Douthit hit the first ball pitched back of it—first base near the stands, where Foxx pulled it down. Adams hit a fly back of short which Simmons took. Frisch hit a very high fly to short right field which Miller took. NO HITS, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

SECOND INNING.

Athletics—Haas was easy for Bottomley on a grounder. Boley poled a long fly down the right field line which Blades pulled down after a run. Walberg bounded to Frisch, who threw him out. NO HITS, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

Cardinals—Bottomley was called out on strikes. Hafey struck out on a called third strike. Blades flied deep to Haas. NO RUNS, NO HITS NO ERRORS.

THIRD INNING.

Athletics—Bishop rolled to Bottomley. Dykes walked. Cochrane walked. Simmons hit into a double play, Gelbert, Frisch to Bottomley. NO HITS, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

Cardinals—Wilson fouled out to Cochrane. Gelbert bounded to Boley, who threw him out. Hallahan popped to Boley. NO HITS, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

FOURTH INNING

Athletics—Foxx hit to Hallahan, who threw him out. Miller was easy for Bottomley. Haas struck out. NO HITS, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

Cardinals—Douthit's first hit of the series was a home run into the left field stands. Adams flied high back of the plate and Cochrane got it easily. Frisch bounded to Boley, who threw him out. Bottomley hit a high smash over the right field roof but it went foul by inches. Bottomley fanned. ONE HIT, ONE RUN, NO ERRORS.

FIFTH INNING

Athletics — Boley flied out to Douthit in short center. Walberg called out on strikes. Bishop smashed a line drive over Blades head, which struck the right field bleacher fence, but only went for a single. Dykes' hip, over short, was easy for Douthit. ONE HIT, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

Cardinals—Hafey rolled deep to Boley, who threw him out. Blades singled to center field. On the hit and run play Wilson hit the first ball pitched past Foxx for a single and sent Blades to third. Gelbert singled to left field, scoring Blades. Simmons fumbled the ball and Wilson tried to make third but was out. Simmons to Dykes, a great play. Hallahan walked. Walberg was replaced by Shores. Douthit hit a roller to Bishop, who threw him out. THREE HITS, ONE RUN, NO ERRORS.

SIXTH INNING

Athletics—Watkins playing right field for Cardinals. Frisch threw out Cochrane. Simmons made his first hit of the game, a two-bagger to right center. Bottomley made a great catch when he reached his gloved hand over the heads of the fans in right field boxes and caught Foxx's fly. Miller lined to Douthit. ONE HIT, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

Cardinals — Adams rolled to Dykes who threw him out. Frisch fouled out to Foxx. Bottomley went out for the eleventh straight time in this series, Bishop throwing him out. NO HITS, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

SEVENTH INNING

Athletics—Haas bounded to Frisch, who threw him out. Boley tapped weakly to Gelbert and was out, Gelbert to Bottomley. Shores walked. Bishop made his third hit off Hallahan, a single over second base. Dykes bounded out to Bottomley. ONE HIT, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

Cardinals — Hafey hit a long single off the left field wall. Watkins hit the first ball pitched for a single to center field and when Haas tried to cut down Hafey at third Watkins reached second. Wilson hit one past Boley for a single, Hafey and Watkins scoring. Quinn replaced Shores. Gelbert bounded to Foxx, who threw to Boley, forcing Wilson. Hallahan struck out. Douthit singled to left, sending Gelbert to third. Adams hit to Quinn, who threw him out. FOUR HITS, TWO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH INNING

Athletics—Cochrane rolled to Gelbert and was out, Gelbert to Bottomley. Simmons made second straight hit, single to right field. Foxx hit sharply to Frisch, who fumbled long enough to let Simmons reach second, but he got the batter at first. Gelbert threw out Miller. ONE HIT, NO RUN, NO ERRORS.

Cardinals—Frisch out Boley to Foxx. Bottomley doubled down first base line. Hafey hit first pitch, a double to right center scoring Bottomley. Watkins flied out to Boley. Boley threw out Wilson. TWO HITS ONE RUN NO ERRORS.

NINTH INNING

Moore batted for Haas and singled. Boley fouled Frisch.

McNair batted for Quinn and flied to Watkins.

Bishop walked.

DOUTHIT HITS HOME RUN IN FOURTH FRAME

Cards and Athletics Meet in Perfect Baseball Weather as Capacity Crowd Looks On

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Oct. 4—Home again before an enthusiastic gathering that taxed this ball yard to capacity, the St. Louis Cardinals, with their backs to the wall after two straight losses in Philadelphia, met the Athletics in the third game of the World Series determined on victory.

"Rube" Walberg was chosen to pitch for the Athletics after the usual mysterious maneuverings of Connie Mack. Connie kept the fans and the press in suspension until game time. He had both Eddie Rommel and Walberg warming up and the customers couldn't decide which one he would use. For a time it looked as though the tall tactician might even cross up the dope entirely by starting Lefty Grove again. But Walberg was picked and the teams got ready for the cry of "play ball."

Wild William Hallahan more or less proved a little erratic in the opening stanza although he finished the inning with three strike-outs to his credit. William must have perspired a bit, however, for Bishop singled, Cochrane walked and Foxx singled in the infield after Dykes and Simmons had fanned. Miller was up with the bases tenanted but Hallahan struck him out and pulled himself from a most precarious position.

The Cardinals could do nothing with Walberg in their half. Douthit, Adams and Frisch all flying out.

Hallahan's twisting tosses from the south side weren't as bewildering to the A's in the second setto and Wild Bill added to his strike-outs to his list. But he retired Haas, Boley and Walberg in order

Buck Breaks Record on Long Air Flight

Alhambra, Cal., Oct. 4 (AP)—Frank Buck, 18-year-old Elizabeth, N. J., flier, broke the junior transcontinental flight record today on arrival at Western Air Express field. He reported his elapsed time for the flight from Newark, N. J., was 28 hours, 33 minutes which lowered by one hour and eight minutes the record made by his friend Eddie Schneider of Jersey City, N. J.

LEGIONNAIRES POURING INTO BOSTON BY SCORES OF THOUSANDS

BRILLIANT RECEPTION GIVEN VETS BY HAPPY CITY

can troops served during the war, will be accorded a stupendous reception when he steps from the New York train at Back Bay station tonight.

He will be received by Col. Carroll J. Swan, chairman of the convention corporation, and Col. William J. Keville, United States marshall and wartime commander of the 101st Ammunition Train, 26th Division.

Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester and Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, "Daddy" of New England's Yankee Division, will be hosts to the French visitor during his stay.

Former President and Mrs. Coolidge, celebrating their 35th wedding anniversary today, will motor to Boston from Northampton in time for the opening of the convention Monday.

BAN ON BOOTLEGS.

They plan a stop at Henry Ford's Wayside Inn, Sudbury, and to complete their trip here in time for arrival tomorrow afternoon.

Julius Haller of Boston Police Post, in charge of the "military police" organization that volunteered for the convention, announced today that a safe and sane celebration was the program mapped out by his force.

He issued warning to would-be bootleggers, reported to be flooding the city with dangerous stimulants that they would be harshly dealt with. Plans call for protection of all visitors.

Arrangements were completed by Legion officials today with Dr. Frederic Dowling, head of Boston City Hospital, for 24-hour service in case of accidents, the latter announcing that nurses have volunteered longer hours to care for the needs of the convention.

In addition to facilities at the City Hospital, Haymarket Relief Station and East Boston Relief Station, a temporary hospital in charge of war nurses, has been set up at South Armory, Irvington st. Back Bay. The address will contain 50 beds.

With the rush of registration today, that brought the 58,000 figure at noon, a hurry call was sent for more badges, while thousands waited.

HONOR TO THE DEAD.

Chairman Clement A. Norton of the registration committee announced that the record registration was so great and is continuing with such force, that plans to close at noon today were abandoned with the deadline extended until Wednesday.

California "broke out" again today, greeting their fellows with a fusilade of blank cartridges at First Corps Cadet armory. The display followed their arrival Wednesday when the salute to Mayor Curley called police reserves from the Milk st., station to School st.

Tomorrow, delegates and visitors will turn to the more serious side of the annual meeting, with church services, breakfasts, luncheons and dinners among the Sunday engagements.

Most impressive of these will be the memorial services for departed comrades at Faneuil Hall. Starting at 8 p. m., thecermony will be opened by Judge Francis J. Good, past department commander of of Massachusetts.

Rev. George P. O'Connor, former department chaplain, will deliver the invocation, and Rev. George F. Kettell, national chaplain, will officiate at the ecclesiastical rites.

With bowed heads Legionnaires will listen to eulogies on the heroes who died in the war or who have passed on since, from such distinguished speakers as Governor Frank G. Allen, Mayor James M. Curley, Commander Bodenhamer and others.

MANY CHURCH SERVICES

The talks will be interspersed with a musical program that will include Marie Murray and Rose Zubilian, soloists, and Milton Wedding, American Legion band.

In the morning a solemn high mass, presided over by Cardinal O'Connell, will be celebrated at the Catholic observance in the Cathedral. Other memorials of every denomination will be conducted throughout the city with Episcopal services at Trinity Church, Baptist services at Tremont Temple, Jewish rites at Temple Israel and Christian Science service at the First (Mother) Church of Christ (Scientist).

Starting with the Aloha breakfast at 8 a. m. at Hotel Somerset, the day is replete with observances and receptions, including the Rhode breakfast at the Square & Compass club, National Child Welfare conference at John Hancock auditorium, the float parade, tea in honor of the national president and national officers at Hotel Kenmore and another for the convention pages at Longwood Towers.

Two dinners are scheduled for 6 o'clock, one the Congressional Medal of Honor dinner at Hotel Commander, Cambridge, and the Past Presidents' parley dinner at Hotel Somerset.

ADAMS TO SPEAK

Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the Navy, will be guest speaker at the Tuesday breakfast to Commander Bodenhamer in the main dininggroom of the Chamber of Commerce. Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber, will preside.

On Wednesday Lynn post No. 6, American Legion, will be host to visiting state and territorial adjutants and Charlie Young, band director at William A. Filene's Sons Co., will direct a massed band of 200 pieces, made up of Lynn English high school and Lynn classical high school bands.

Over the week-end the various national committees will be confined to their headquarters, preparing their reports to the convention for Monday morning. This is particularly true of the resolutions committee and its subcommittees, the national policies committee and others that are handling the stupendous task of moulding together the mass of material turned in for consideration of the delegates.

"WRECK" TO BE GAY.

The "playboy" division of the Legion, the 40 & 8, is formulating its own plans for the colorful events attended always at their gatherings.

The chief objective of the organization is the "national wreck," the appellation applied to the annual initiation of new members. It is scheduled for the Boston Arena Monday night, following the street parade of candidates—" the parade of the wooden soldiers."

Chief Marshal E. Snapper Ingham, head of the 40 & 8, will lead the demonstration, and promises a parade such as Boston has all never seen. The route will take the marchers through Beacon st., to Park, to Tremont, to Boylston, to Park sq., to Columbus ave., to Massachusetts ave. and to Shawmut st., where it will enter the Arena.

Monday harbors a long program of side attractions for the visitors who will not attend the convention sessions. Every field of amusement is covered, with the feature outlined as the football contest between Boston College and the Quantico marines.

ACES STUNT AT AIR MEET

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

With ideal weather and a brisk northwest wind the eight-day American Legion air show got off to an auspicious start today at the Boston Airport, with a large crowd on hand to witness the opening events.

The first event was a formation of three big passenger planes, two Ford tri-motors and an 18-passenger Curtiss Condor. This was followed by passenger carrying and a speed race for planes of less than 125-horse power.

Among the feature events which the crowd was waiting for were a bomb dropping contest, parachute dive and a mystery event.

FAMED FLIERS HERE

Early arrivals at the airport saw planes dropping in from all parts of the compass, and some of the best known fliers in the country were due later in the day, including girl entrants in the Miss America of the Air contest which is on today and tomorrow only.

Marjorie Lesse, of Albany, Ruth Nichols of Paul, W. Va., Opal Kunz, of New York, and Irene Chaffey, of Hartford, were announced today as among the entrants in this event.

This contest, it was also announced, will consist of landing tests, sealed order speed flights and an altitude competition.

Plans for the air show, which is expected to attract the largest throng that has ever visited Boston Airport, were completed by Major Louis Boutwell, chairman of the American Legion aviation committee, and Capt. Albert E. Hegan, airport superintendent, today.

Because of the large number of persons at the airport this forenoon, Capt. Edson issued an appeal to those who plan to attend to use the Elevated instead of their automobiles.

He said there is parking space at the field for only 1500 automobiles, and this space is not nearly large enough to care for the crowds who will go by motor.

Such famous flyers as Capt. Frank Hawks, Jimmie Doolittle, Lee Schoenhair, Jimmie Haislip and Roger Williams are scheduled to arrive either today or tomorrow

OLMSTEAD TO FACE TRIAL

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—A court-martial was ordered today for Hugh D. Olmstead, officer in charge of the coast patrol vessel from which shots were fired that killed Louis E. Pratt of the Plum Island Coast Guard station in Massachusetts two months ago.

Admiral Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard, approved a recommendation of a special board of inquiry that the court-martial be held.

Olmstead has maintained he mistook a surf boat in which Pratt was riding for a rum runner.

This court-martial will be on a charge of culpable inefficiency.

A general court, now sitting at Boston, will be convened under Capt. W. H. Hunter, division commander of the coast guard customs house fliers.

In his announcement Admiral Billard said the investigation showed Pratt's death "was an unfortunate accident that was the outcome of a peculiar and unusual combination of circumstances."

Boy Amnesia Victim Belongs in Derby, Vt.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—A birth certificate, sewed in his cap, tentatively identified a boy amnesia victim picked up today on lower Broadway as Wayne Buswell, 17 years old, son of Charles and Nellie Fuller Buswell, Box 704, R. F. D., Derby, Vt.

A junior automobile operator's license also was found in the possession of the boy. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital, pending efforts to communicate with his parents.

LILA LEE NEARLY WELL; TO WED

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 4 (INS)—Almost recovered from an illness that sent her to an Arizona retreat, Lila Lee is planning for her marriage to John Farrow, scenario writer, letters received by friends here revealed today. The wedding will take place when her divorce decree from James Kirkwood becomes final.

CUBA IS UNDER DICTATORSHIP

Havana, Oct. 4—The Cuban Congress today gave President Gerardo Machado the power to suspend constitutional rights until after the November elections.

Congress adopted the measure, presented by the President, by a vote of 15 to 5 in the Senate and 78 to 10 in the House.

The presidential message said that extraordinary conditions in Cuba made necessary the suspension of constitutional rights, which meant granting dictatorial powers to the President. The message called attention to the fact that serious propaganda now is being spread in Cuba, and said the President desired to be prepared for immediate action to protect lives and property, if such action were required.

WALKER MAY BE NEW FILM CZAR

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Evening Post published a report today that Postmaster James J. Walker was irked by his official duties and planned to resign Jan. 1 to succeed Will H. Hayes as head of the motion picture industry.

"The report was taken at once to the mayor," the Post said, "who confirmed the report that he was finding his job irksome, but indicated he planned to stick it out."

The mayor was quoted as saying:

"Much as I might wish that January 1, 1933 (the end of his term) were here, I am not going to run away from all this now,"

Vice-Commander of Legion Welcomed by Allen

Prominent among the Legionnaires arriving for the convention today was George W. Malone of Nevada, national vice-commander, who, with Mrs. Malone, was welcomed to Massachusetts by Governor Frank G. Allen at the State House.

Vice-Commander Malone, an engineer by profession, has been instrumental in framing a number of resolutions adopted at previous national conventions and is serving this year as a member of the national policies committee.

He is also a member of the national executive committee of Nevada and in addition to his Legion activities is serving on President Hoover's public domains commission now studying the advisability of turning back to 11 Western states 190,000,000 acres of land now under federal control.

Boulder Dam legislation was written into the Congressional Record with his engineering report which was the result of months of intensive study of that stupendous project. He is Nevada's state engineer and a member of the public service commission, similar to the public utilities commission of this state.

During the World War he served in France with the 145th Engineers and now heads an engineering concern in Reno.

Mrs. Malone, a charming brunette and mother of an eighteen-year-old girl, has accompanied her husband to all previous national conventions. She was presented a Tercentenary medallion by Gov. Allen.

Navy Yard Open All Day for Legion Visitors

Navy plans for the American Legion convention were announced in full today and these include a demonstration in honor of the U.S.S. Constitution—"Old Ironsides"—on Wednesday, Oct. 8.

Ships at the yard will be open to visitors from 9 a. m to 4 p. m. daily.

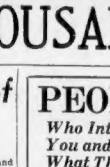
Boris of Bulgaria to Wed Italian Princess

London, Oct. 4—The engagement of King Boris of Bulgaria to Princess Giovanna of Italy was announced yesterday according to a dispatch from here. The tentative date for the wedding is placed early in November of this year.



Princess Giovanna

The announcement of the engagement brings to a close negotiations towards this end which have been going on for more than a year. Religious difficulties have heretofore hindered the announcement of the betrothal. Princess Giovanna is the third daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

Mrs. Barrett Wendell Gets Girl Scout Office

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 4—Mrs. Barrett Wendell of Boston and Portsmouth, society matron and prominent in club activities, was elected here yesterday sixth vice-president of the Girl Scouts at the morning session of the 16th annual Girl Scout convention, meeting here this week.

Mrs. Barrett Wendell

Mrs. Wendell moves from the seventh vice-presidency to the office recently held by Mrs. Owen D. Young.

She has been active in Girl Scouting since the founding of the movement. She has been a member of the Massachusetts Girl Scout Council since 1914.

Son-in-Law of Couzens to Start Work

Washington, Oct. 4—William Jeffries Chewning, Jr., who married the $50,000,000 heiress daughter of Senator James Couzens of Michigan, will enter the bank world starting Monday, he announced here today. He will begin his business career as assistant manager of a Washington bank.

Wm. Chewning, Jr.

During his apprenticeship at the bank, Chewning hours will run from 8 a. m. until after midnight. His duties will include the supervision of social functions.

Chewning worked as a bank clerk when he married Margo Couzens.

that good example here in the United States.

Chinese bandits captured two British women missionaries and demanded a ransom, threatening death.

Their demand for $25,000 was refused. They cut a finger from one of the unfortunate missionaries, Miss Nettleton, and sent that to the authorities, saying they would accept $5000, but would kill the two elderly women if the money did not come.

The Rev. W. Cash, secretary of the Church Missionary Society said he dared not pay the ransom. If he did so, kidnaping missionaries would become a business.

Ransom was refused, the two women have been killed, England is much excited, although British authorities also opposed payment of ransom that might endanger the safety of all foreigners.

Miss Caroline Read Picturesque Bride in Emanuel Church

MISS CAROLINE READ WAS married to Mr. Francis Appleton Harding yesterday afternoon at Emanuel Church with one of the prettiest weddings of the year. The bride was lovely in her ivory satin wedding gown with long train, the bodice made of rare old lace with tiny sleeves. Of beautiful lace also was her bridal veil draped in cap fashion most becoming to her clear cut features. Her bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her mother, Mrs. Harold W. Read, looked very happy in delphinium blue velvet with matching turban.

MISS PEGGY READ, THE bride's sister and maid of honor, wore Paton pink taffeta with net trimmings, her velvet beret and tiny velvet slipper bows being of periwinkle blue, very Frenchy and very chic. The bridesmaids' gowns were the latest Vionnet model in periwinkle blue taffeta and net, with matching berets. They carried pale yellow gladiola and blue lace flowers. It was most becoming to the attendants who were Miss Jean Read, Miss Gertruda Marean, Miss Nancy Johnson, Miss Sally Wambolt, Miss Harriet Blake, Miss Caroline Powell and Miss Anna Wolcott. A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents on Appleton st., Cambridge.

MR. WALTER CHANNING is having a dog show at his country place in Dover on October 5, Sunday afternoon, for members of the New England Kennel Club.

New England Woman Is Speaker

Mrs. Ellen Abby Eastman Is Delegate to Atlantic City Conference

By NANCY BREWSTER

The first woman to pass certified public accountancy examinations in New England will next week be one of the principal speakers at the Northeast Regional Conference of the National Business and Professional Women's Clubs which meets at the Hotel Chelsea, Atlantic City, Oct. 10 to 13.

She is Mrs. Ellen Libby Eastman, of Sanford, Me., chairman of membership committee in this great organization. Despite her pioneering, Mrs. Eastman is one of the youngest accountants in the country.

Beginning her career as an office helper at 17 a week, Mrs. Eastman studied accountancy evenings with occasional assistance from an experienced bookkeeper. Persistence won her a real place in the accountancy world, and she now handles accounts for many important business enterprises.

Mrs. Eastman has interests aside from her business and they take her in work among business and professional women. She was the first auditor of the Portland Business and Professional Women's Club; and afterwards served as member of the membership committee of the Maine State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Her only hobby is fishing.

Free Recreation Night at Y. W. C. A. Activities Center

For the first time in its history the Boston Y. W. C. A. instituted a free recreation night at the Clarendon st. activities center. This meant that Greater Boston working girls took possession of the building, played ping pong, roller skated, bowled, danced, and enjoyed a movie as part of a comprehensive free recreational program instituted by "Y" officials.

Membership in the Y. W. C. A. was not required. Free recreational nights along these lines will be held the first Friday of every month. In November, plunges in the pool will be added to the activities now enjoyed.

When the girls arrived at the "Y" at 7 p. m., they first enjoyed songs in the auditorium. Since more than 1800 girls attended the "gala night festivities" an even larger number attended this program.

Business League to Have Performance on Monday Evening

The Business Women's League of the Boston Y. W. C. A. is bringing Miss Anne Verna Baker, impersonator and caricaturist and ventriloquist to the "Y" building next Monday night for a benefit performance, the proceeds to make good the league's pledge to the "Y".

Members of the central committee in charge include Angie E. Bardin, Mrs. Kathryn M. Bullard, Boston; Mrs. Elsie M. Albertson, Brookline; Maurice F. Darling, Cambridge; Gertrude Lockwood, Newton, and Margaret Mansfield, Dorchester.

West Medford Club Opens Fall Season at Meeting Monday

The sixteenth season of activities for the West Medford Woman's Club opens next Monday when in Community Hall at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. John Montgomery, the new president, will welcome the members and outline the year's program.

Mrs. Josiah Bartlett, chairman of the calendar committee, will have charge of the afternoon's entertainment. Mrs. W. H. Couch, Mrs. W. Lindquist, Mrs. Frank L. Deery and Mrs. F. B. Smith will act as hostesses.

Wife of Former Mayor to Address Old Glory Club

Mrs. Edna Hughson Kellom, new president of Old Glory Club, will preside over the opening session of the group next Monday at 2:30 p. m. in Jefferson Hall, Trinity Court. Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, wife of Boston's former Mayor, will talk briefly to the membership on interesting things she remarked during her European trip and Mrs. Eugene C. Webster will read several selections.

The activity of Old Glory Club chiefly concerns the correct use and hanging of the flag, the principle for which the club was founded by Miss Marion H. Frazier.

Club Activities of Interest Scheduled for Near Future

Three club items of interest are these: that on Friday, Oct. 10, the Ex-Reed Club will meet at the Hotel Vendome at 2:30 p. m., with Mrs. Charles B. Hall as the speaker and Mrs. J. Robert McKenzie, president, presiding; that on Thursday, Oct. 9, the Parliamentary Law Club will meet at the Hotel Brunswick at 2 p. m. for a special drill on procedure, directed by Mrs. S. Ernest Griffin and Mrs. Electa Sher; and that the D. A. R. Founders Society will do honor to its founder, Miss Marion H. Frazier, at a testimonial meeting to be held at Filene's, Oct. 15.

Junior Coat Lines Like Grown-Ups

By ANN ARDEN

MODEL FROM WM. FILENE'S SONS CO.

THE YOUNGER coat mode is fashioned along the same lines as that of the sophisticated mode. Since double-breasted slightly fitted coats are the last word in smartness for grown-ups, those fashion points are reflected in coats for Miss Six-to-Twelve.

THE TRIM and warm coat pictured is of navy blue chinchilla wool, double-breasted, slightly fitted to a slim and flared princess line. It has wide adjustable collar and revers, turn-back cuffs, and slant pockets. The coat is lined in a wool plaid. The matching beret is in navy blue wool, too.

THE DANGER of misplacing one's small daughter in a crowd is somewhat lessened when she wears her name embroidered on her belt, as does one young lady we observed recently. The belt of her blue jersey frock bore her first name embroidered in bright red.

THE CLOSET for the child's room starts the habit of neatness early if it receives the same attention that mother's closet receives. There are numerous little conveniences and neat devices that will add to the efficient appearance of this accessory to the room. A toy chest can fit into the child's closet. Hangars, hat stands and boxes are to be had in interesting and amusing forms that will make neatness a game for the child.

THE QUESTION as to whether the miniature replicas of period furniture for children will be accepted enthusiastically has found its answer in an increasing demand for small pieces in several traditional periods. The vogue first started last year with the introduction of early American pieces for the nursery. Pine, maple and mahogany were developed in diminutive size and with as faithful reproduction as grown-up pieces. Miniature Queen Anne furniture is the very latest note for the smart nursery.

WHETHER ONE is five years old or fifty, the story of the gentle little Cinderella has romantic charm. Therefore it is appropriate that her story in pictures adorns a decorative fabric. Cretonne in gay colors is chosen to tell the tale of the glass slipper, and it is used for hangings for the nursery or for any other room that wants to be gay and delightfully different.

Service Club Will Swell Charity Fund by Producing Show

Turning their attention to dramatics as a money-making venture for charity, the Women's Service Club of Boston has picked "All God's Chillun Got Wings" as the vehicle by which they hope to swell the fund for club philanthropies.

Mrs. Butler R. Wilson, Jr., is chairman of the general committee in charge of the arrangements for this, the club's second annual charity production. It is to be given Friday night, Oct. 31, at the Fine Arts Theater, at 8:15 p. m.

Assisting Mrs. Wilson on her committee are: Mrs. Sadie E. Fitzhallen, Edith Parris, Frederick Yaney, Ralf Coleman. The program committee includes: Mrs. Stella Holmes, chairman; Katherine Averett, Gertruda Scalk, Mrs. Myron H. McAdoo.

Silver Queen Bound Home

Pasadena, Cal., Oct. 4 (US)—Pasadena's "Silver Queen"—the former Mrs. Susanna Bransford Emery-Holmes—is scheduled soon to arrive at her mansion and present to the city's society her third husband, young Dr. Radovan Nebelkof Delitch of Serbia.

They were wedded in Paris on July 19 last, after a whirlwind courtship—first by civil ceremony and then in the Russian-Greek Orthodox Church.

Mrs. Emery-Holmes-Delitch, at 71, still has the slender figure of a young girl and has retained, through facial surgery, much of the beauty that marked her as a young woman. She has an income of $1000 a day, wears handsful of jewelry and is always arrayed in the smartest modes.

The "Silver Queen's" marriage to the young Serbian doctor was a surprise, as she had been reported engaged to Prince Nicholas Engalitcheff of Russia and later to Prince David Dadiani of Georgia.

Antidote for Sin Claimed

Christian Science was declared "a sure antidote for all sin or wrong" in a lecture last night on "Christian Science, the Revelation of Divine Love," at the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Back Bay, by Charles V. Winn, S. C., of Pasadena, Cal.

"Christian Science is a sure antidote for all sin or wrong because it goes to the very bottom of the trouble and destroys it at its very inception," he said.

"Every sinful act is preceded by a sinful thought, and if sin were never in thought it never would be acted. Jesus taught that all sin originates in sinful desire, and in destroying the desire the very foundation of sin is destroyed.

"His method, Christian Science, has restored and is delivering men and women from the thraldom of sin and evil of every name and nature."

Salvation Army in Drive at Waltham

The Waltham post of the Salvation Army yesterday launched a drive for $4000 to defray the cost of carrying on its work for the next 12 months. A total of 108 needy families, comprising 467 persons, were aided by the Salvation Army in Waltham during the past year, it was announced.

Daily Antique No. 214

An old Irish pitcher, beautifully decorated with floral designs, has a history that goes back more than 100 years. It was made in Ireland. It is one of the many interesting bits that are to be found in the collection of Miss M. E. Ring, 274A Shawmut ave.

Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the Antique Editor, Boston Evening American, 9 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

West Point Cadets Parade Here Oct. 18

Boston again will witness a review of West Point Cadets on Oct. 18, it was announced today. Mayor Curley received a letter from Maj.-Gen. William A. Smith, superintendent of the Military Academy, accepting the mayor's invitation for the cadets to parade on Boston Common.

Maj.-Gen. Smith stated that the review on the Common will follow the arrival of the cadets at the Back Bay Station and previous to their football game with Harvard in the afternoon.

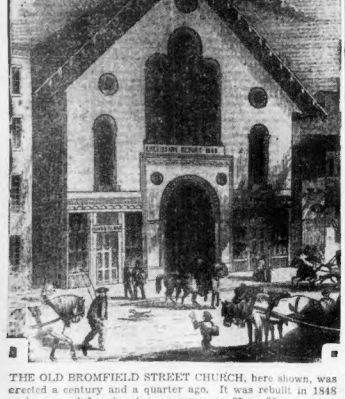
In Old Boston—No. 377

Massachusetts Tercentenary, 1930



THE OLD BROMFIELD STREET CHURCH, here shown, was erected a century and a quarter ago. It was rebuilt in 1848 and was used for church purposes up to 25 or 30 years ago. The business building, No. 36, now stands on its site and the congregation under another name worships in the South End.

On Monday, R. H. Stearns Co., for years known as "Blanket Headquarters in New England", will offer the largest single purchase of quality blankets it has assembled for many seasons . . .

A Blanket Sale

So Great . . . that it has taken six months to prepare for it

LAST SPRING, we told a blanket maker of national reputation to start preparation for this sale. He had large quantities of pure long-staple wool on hand. We chose the colors we wanted: rose, blue, green, lavender, tan, and gold. We designated the lengths we wanted. No blanket should be less than 84 inches long. We ordered 4-inch silk satin bindings for every blanket. The mill completed our order a few weeks ago. They gave us price concessions because we kept them busy in a quiet season. Now we, in turn, give you concessions. These blankets are long. They're made of the same grade of wool that goes into our higher priced blankets. They're not blankets picked up for "sale" purposes. They're beautiful, new "custom-made" blankets in the colors that women want for their modern homes.

On sale, third floor.

this sale is another demonstration that QUALITY AT STEARNS' IS NEVER LOWERED BECAUSE PRICES ARE LOWERED

All-wool colored single blankets made expressly for us

Size 60 by 84, $8.50 each . . . a $12.50 value
Size 72 by 84, $9.50 each . . . a $13.50 value
Size 80 by 90, $11.50 each . . a $16.50 value

Because these blankets are new and made to our order we haven't their identical style in our stocks, but equivalent quality blankets are being sold at the value prices stated.

'FIRST LADY' BANS PLANS FOR FETE

By FRANCES L. BAIRD

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, first lady of the land, will accompany the President here Monday, it was definitely announced today, but her plans for the visit brought the wish that no fetes be arranged in her honor.

Elaborate preparations for her reception were in the making by Mrs. John Lowell, chairman of the distinguished guests committee, until word came through Mrs. Hoover's secret service guards that she wanted no ceremony.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Congresswoman from Lowell, will greet the President's wife, the only greeter at the request of Mrs. Hoover.

The Hoovers will be at the Copley-Plaza for the few hours they are in Boston.

During his stay the President will address a joint session of the legion and the auxiliary conventions in the Arena at 11:30 o'clock Monday.

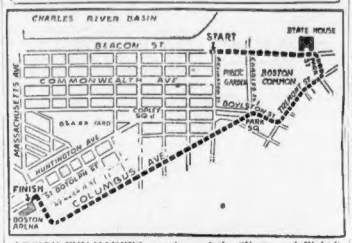
President and Mrs. Hoover will be honor guests at a luncheon to be given at the Copley-Plaza at 1 o'clock by Governor Allen.

Lady Edward Spencer Churchill, president of the British Legion Auxiliary; Mme. Masaraki of Poland, president of the International Fidac Auxiliary; Mme. Bremard, president of the French Fidac Auxiliary, and Mme. Le Daville, assistant secretary of the French branch, head the long list of distinguished guests and officials arriving in Boston today for the big meeting that opens in Symphony Hall Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

With the meeting of the committee on revision of the manual ceremonies at the Hotel Somerset, the official machinery of the 10th annual national American Legion Auxiliary began to function today.

The big social event of today is the brilliant dinner being given in honor of Mrs. Macrae, the national president, by Mrs. Franklin Lee Bishop, national chairman of the convention, at the Hotel Somerset at 7 o'clock.

Route of '40 and 8' Parade



LEGION FUN-MAKERS, members of the 'Forty and Eight,' will travel over the route shown above in their parade Monday night. The parade will start from Arlington and Beacon sts. at 7 o'clock.

POLICE RECEIVE LEGION ORDERS

Police Commissioner Hultman today gave police captains instructions for Tuesday's big parade, the protection of President Hoover and the general handling of the Legion convention situation.

"Duty with a smile," was the slogan passed along to the rank and file of the department by Supt. Crowley.

Pamphlets were given the captains for distribution to all the men of the department, apprising them of "what's what" during the convention.

There was a blackboard and map drill in connection with parade plans, and orders were issued for 1500 patrolmen, sergeants and higher officers to take part in handling the immense throng that will line the streets all day.

For the assistance of the ill and injured, 30 first aid stations will be ready at an early hour Tuesday, and in charge of doctors and nurses.

Special orders were issued by Capt. Fitzgerald of Milk st. division holding him accountable for the Postoffice sq. district, where nobody will be allowed to stand, because of the danger of cave-ins, in connection with the excavating for the new federal building.

Inspectors Haggerty, Towle and Dorsey, together with Capt. Jeremiah Mosher, drew the important assignment connected with the Hoover visit.

EX-D. A. R. HEAD GETS DECREE

Bridgeport, Ct., Oct. 4—A divorce decree which developed out of an argument over their wine cellar sent Mrs. Alfred J. Brousseau, former president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and her husband on their separate ways today.

Mrs. Brousseau charged her husband with cruelty, alleging he slapped her when she refused him the key to the wine cellar. Brousseau is president of Mack Trucks, Inc.

Mrs. Brousseau was head of the D. A. R. during the stormy controversy two years ago when the national officers blacklisted a large number of men and women of liberal views as speakers before the various chapters of the organization.

In the face of severe criticism she stood by her guns in that dispute. When her term as president general ended, she accepted a position as vice-president of a large insurance company and associate editor of a widely-read journal of opinion.

"Bossy" Gillis Turns Down Legion Fund

Newburyport, Oct. 4—A discordant note was thrown into the reception of visiting Legionnaires today when Mayor "Bossy" Gillis flatly refused a city appropriation of $200 for entertainment of Wisconsin guests of Newburyport Post.

His action followed a continued wrangle between Gillis and officials of Newburyport Post over the proposed new home nearly a year ago.

KING ALBERT IN ROLE OF HERO

Trento, Italy, Oct. 4 (AP)—Albert, King of the Belgians, has just left this Dolomite district after several weeks of Alpine sports, leaving behind him records of mountain climbing equalled by few, if any, of the crowned heads in history.

Albert with his guides, brothers Silvio Mario and Agostini, ascended six or more cloud-piercing peaks.

During the climb of Brenta's summit, which is 11,000 feet high, King Albert performed a heroic feat.

As he stood on a rock jutting from a perpendicular side of the mountain one of his guides shouted to him that the rock was giving way. Albert moved quickly to another rock, but with great presence of mind continued to support the tumbling rock with his breast and hands, lest it should fall on the guides below.

"NEW FABLES in SLANG"
By GEORGE ADE

As he was in the old days, George Ade is still the most up-to-the-minute observer of life. The first of these NEW FABLES IN SLANG appears tomorrow in the Boston Sunday Advertiser and it's a rousingly funny story of Lyman, the country boy who made good in the big city. Lyman goes back to Jerkwater Center, the town of his birth, and then the fun begins. Yes, George Ade's "New Fables in Slang" are certainly new ones. They will appear every Sunday—the first one in

CALIFORNIA TO DINE HEARST ON OCT. 14

Los Angeles, Oct. 4—William Randolph Hearst will be given a sentimental banquet by citizens of Los Angeles at the Biltmore Hotel on October 14.

Members of prominent citizens attending the invitation yesterday said their purpose was to give Mr. Hearst upon his return to his home and to his native State of California a public demonstration of their approval of his patriotic course in the incident that led to the order from the French Government that he leave France.

The teegram of invitation sent to Mr. Hearst was as follows:

"Mr. William Randolph Hearst, New York American, New York:

"The undersigned, on behalf of a large groups of citizens of Los Angeles, respectfully urge your acceptance of an invitation to be guest of honor at a testimonial banquet at the Hotel Biltmore, Los Angeles, on the evening of Tuesday, October 14. Please address your reply to John C. Austin, 607-608, Chamber of Commerce, Los Angeles.

(Signed) "John C. Austin, Louis B. Mayer, Earl C. Anthony, W. W. Mines, H. L. Carnahan, D. W. Pontius, committee."

PUBLISHER FEELS HONORED.

Mr. Hearst replied in the following telegram, received last night by Mr. Austin:

"I am much honored by your invitation to be the guest at a banquet at the Hotel Biltmore, Los Angeles, Tuesday evening, October 14, and I accept with many thanks and with great appreciation."

Mr. Austin, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, whose name heads the list of the committee on invitation, said:

"We feel that Mr. Hearst showed good American nerve in this matter of his publication of the secret treaty which the French were trying to negotiate with the English, and the men associated with me on the committee which sent the invitation feel as I do that here in California, his native state, it is especially fitting that we should do Mr. Hearst honor upon his homecoming.

"The banquet will be a huge success. This community has been intensely interested and has approved strongly of Mr. Hearst's conduct in publishing the secret treaty and of his clear-cut convincing exposition of that incident in his public statements since the French Government ordered him from France.

"Mr. Hearst believes in laying the cards face up on the table, for all to see, and that is good American doctrine.

STATE FEELS INDEBTED.

"Here in California we owe much to Mr. Hearst as a patron of the arts, the best things in architecture and painting and sculpture and music. Particularly he and his family, his revered mother, Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, especially have been generous in their benefactions to the University of California.

"One of the greatest works of Mr. Hearst has been along the line of encouragement and promotion of education, and for this as well as many other things beside this French incident, citizens of Los Angeles are preparing a great reception for him."

The committee has taken rooms on the sixth floor of the Chamber of Commerce building, and has begun there the preliminary work of planning the banquet. The Sala de Oro of the Biltmore has been engaged for the dinner. It and its galeonies will seat 1500 persons at table. The committee will announce details of preparations from day to day.

Victim of Stabbing Is Found in Street

Charles Blessington, 26, of Templeton st., Dorchester, was found at the corner of Dorchester ave. and Park st. early today suffering from a stab wound. Patrolman James Dwell of the Fields Corner station found Blessington nearly unconscious from loss of blood. The man was removed to Boston City Hospital. Police say he was involved in an altercation.

Examiner at 50 Marks Epoch in Journalism

The San Francisco Examiner, oldest paper in the nation-wide chain of Hearst newspapers, today celebrates its 50th anniversary as a morning paper. In 1880, as the Evening Examiner, the property was taken over in a bankrupt condition by the late George Hearst, afterwards United States Senator. On October 4 of that year it was changed to a morning newspaper. In 1887 the Examiner became the property of William Randolph Hearst, commencing the career of progressive journalism which is represented today by 23 daily and 17 Sunday newspapers.

In the following article, Winifred Black describes the changes the Examiner has known and helped to bring about.

By WINIFRED BLACK

San Francisco, Oct. 4—The San Francisco Examiner is 50 years old as a morning newspaper.

In 1880 George Hearst diverted his attention for a little from copper, silver and gold and grazing and stock raising, and turned his keen, courageous mind to politics.

So he bought a little evening paper, gasping out a feeble life, and turned it into a morning paper.

Those were strange times, not only in California but all over the world. Rutherford B. Hayes was President. Victoria was Queen of England, and Albert Edward, the Prince of Wales, set the fashions for men.

"The Chinese-Must-Go" riots had just subsided, leaving the city seething with bitter race feuds.

The Bonanza kings were in full sway and all the great wooden places on Knob Hill were crowded to the doors with visitors from all over the world, come to share in the romance of California life.

THEN CAME YOUNG HEARST.

Fortunes were made and lost on the turn of a card. The town was "wide open" and no one ever dreamed of closing it.

The Southern Pacific had clutched the state in a terrific embrace that bid fair to kill all independence, enterprise, hope or ambition.

In, and out among the motley throngs of the times the little San Francisco Examiner stumbled feebly along, like a lost child.

The new morning paper didn't pay and nobody read it.

Just as Senator Hearst was making up his mind to give it away, if he could find anyone to take it, his son, William Randolph Hearst, came home from college.

"I'd like to run that paper of yours," said young Hearst, quite seriously.

"But the mines and the ranches and the other projects," said the senator. "I was hoping——"

"No, I'd like to try the paper."

"All right," said the senator, and all right it was.

WAKES UP THE TOWN

Before the new editor had had charge for six months San Francisco knew somebody had come to town.

Grafters were exposed. Thieves were prosecuted. Slippery deals in slippery politics were brought to light. Old wrongs were righted. News, more news and still more news.

Some San Francisco newspapermen even began to buy homes and act like real human beings with money in the bank. The Examiner wanted real newspapermen and paid real money for real work.

Somebody said the ferry boats were dangerous because they had no drill for life-saving. An Examiner reporter jumped overboard opposite Goat Island and proved that what somebody said was right. The ferry life-saving program took a great turn for the better.

Young women were being ill-treated in the receiving hospital.

An Examiner reporter "fainted" in the street and exposed the outrageous conditions so effectively that the Governor wired from Sacramento:

"Remove all officials first, investigate afterward."

A little lame boy was turned away from the Children's Hospital because there was no room for him.

FOR "SQUARE DEAL."

The Examiner organized entertainments and fairs, took up collections and built a great shy ward for incurable children.

Susan B. Anthony was being laughed off the platform all over the country, but the Examiner came out for woman's suffrage.

And it was the first big paper in the United States to do so.

The Examiner made the first big fight for the initiative and referendum.

When San Francisco was laid low by the great fire of 1906, Mr. Hearst bought food and clothing and other needed supplies for the destitute thousands and sent them by special trains from Los Angeles.

A square deal.

An even chance for the poor as well as for the rich.

Clean politics.

These were the Examiner's slogans and they were something besides slogans, they were road maps by which the paper found its way out of the wild disorder of the early times into the broad, sure, open road to honest and efficient service.

2 HELD IN RADIO RING ROUNDUP

Providence, R. I., Oct. 4 (AP)—Two additional Massachusetts members of a supposed interstate radio theft gang today were bound over under heavy bail for the grand jury on larceny charges. A third man was held in heavy bail yesterday for trial.

Gilbert P. Tochtermann of Highland ave., Somerville, today was bound over in $4000 bail on a theft charge and an additional $4000 bail on a charge of arriving away a truck without consent of the owner. He pleaded guilty to both charges. Dominick A. DiBenedetto of Porter st., Somerville, was bound over in $4000 bail on a theft charge. He pleaded guilty.

The two men held today are charged with transferring 12 radio sets, valued at $1500, from another truck to their truck. The sets were recovered in the home of David F. Higgins, Woburn, police said.

FIRE STORE TO COVER BREAK

In an attempt to cover up the theft of $80 from a cash box, burglars set fire to the grocery store of Arthur Pefiguturian, on Broadway, near Trowbridge st., Cambridge, early today. Joseph Gasick, on his way to work, saw smoke coming out of the store and notified the fire department. The damage was slight.

Policeman Saves Woman, 83, at Fire

Exhausted by her efforts to extinguish a fire in her room on the fourth floor at 84 Montgomery st., South Boston, yesterday afternoon, Miss Anne Kerwin, 83, was overcome and carried to the street but refused to go to the hospital.

She was carried down four floors by Patrolman Hugh Morrison of the East Dedham st. station.

Several other persons were driven out by the fire and smoke but firemen confined the flames to the fourth floor, the damage being estimated at $6000.

Hunt Man Who Shot Wife and Daughter

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 4 (AP)—Napoleon Norman, 61, of Manchester, N. H., is being sought by police for shooting his wife, Mrs. Rose Norman, 60, and her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Theirault, 29. The former was shot twice in the head and the latter was wounded in the shoulder. Both are expected to recover.

Nab Demented Man Seeking Bruening

Berlin, Oct. 4 (INS)—Police prevented what might have been a serious tragedy here today when they arrested a demented man trying to invade the palace of Chancellor Heinrich von Bruening. The man was immediately confined to an asylum.

Urges Reds Be Exiled From U. S.

Editor Boston American:

All these "Reds" and other mentally unbalanced advocates of Communists in our country should be rounded up and deported to Soviet Russia, where they know too well they would be shot if they started such foolish demonstrations against the Soviet rule like they get away with here.

If they don't like our form of orderly government or our Constitution, why don't they get out of our country and stay out? Communism teaches Atheism, world revolution, contempt for law, and misery and slavery; and some of our noble leaders want us to recognize the Soviet Republics.

We are minding our own affairs. They don't know enough to mind theirs. They are sending spies and other half-baked trouble-makers to create strikes and disorders.

Fears "Hitlerism" in Economic Distress

Editor Boston American:

Article on Editorial page of your paper of September 26 captioned "When you buy a suit" disturbed me.

Economic distress amongst average humanity is so horrible that such agencies as yours should not publish such nonsensical rot as we should not goad our people on to "Hitlerism."

A worth while formula for all: "Reduce daily working hours at least half and increase wages of working people."

This or some such action is necessary if the humanity who does the worthwhile work of the world is to be treated as creatures of Almighty God and if most of those who helped in the past to assume the "responsibility" of sailing the ship of state in such a way as to bring about present economic distress in our country wish to make amends that may bring them a pleasing reward when they give an account of their stewardship.

Urges Repeal of Dry Law to Gain Revenue

Editor Boston American:

A correspondent, John N. McGinnis, says he clipped a letter from your column in which a writer had the good sense to claim that we should repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and get back the revenues from liquor. It took Mr. McGinnis months of thought to arrive at the decision that we don't need any more revenues but those we get from tobacco. Don't talk too much about that either, Mr. McGinnis, or the prohibitionists might get sore to think people are enjoying themselves by smoking and start agitation to pass a law against that. Then we'll have to be smoking up our sleeve just the same way as the fanatics are talking through their hats.

What is it to us Americans what Great Britain is doing? We know prohibition is costing the United States a billion dollars every year. With unemployment amounting to a national problem this money could go very nicely to helping those out of luck and out of a job. When the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, prosperity will return to America in leaps and bounds. Massachusetts will start the ball rolling on November 4 by the vote "YES" on Referendum Question No. 2 that her citizens give to repeal the Baby Volstead Law.

TOM FLANNERY

Backs Stand of Governor on Deportation of Reds

Editor Boston American:

About these "Reds" in Boston, commenting cynically upon the affairs of the American Legion, I stand back of what Governor Allen said some time ago:

"I would like to see every alien who desires to tear down the institution of Government, who flouts the laws of this country, deported, if we have to buy the tickets to get them out."

These are my sentiments.

S. E. SEIBOLD.

Why "Fizz" Over 6-Cent Toll to Enforce Dry Law

Editor Boston American:

The cost of prohibition enforcement, we are told, amounts to six cents for each person in our country. This is only a cent more than a glass of lager. Why fizz over it?

The Australian government gives $25 for each child at birth and three shillings a week afterwards for its upkeep. At 18 years each is given a job that will support himself, wife and two children. No birth control need apply there.

The U. S. government gave employment to 21,260 more people in the fiscal year 1930 than during the previous year. Why hit the government as being selfish? Why join the Reds?

Why is a Boston minister now interested in a gas invention after the good work that he has done in the pulpit? There are many other questions like these that wear out your think tank.

N. H. MURPHY.

Denies Prohibition Aids Unemployment

Editor Boston American:

A statement in your letter column by Florence Birmingham that one of the great aids to unemployment is the Eighteenth Amendment just made my hair stand on end.

It is that type of argument that has been going the rounds of the press. Prohibition has so many evils laid at its door that it is about time some one yelled out: "You're Another."

Unemployment is a world event. It is found in every country. It is found in countries to a larger extent where there is little or no restriction in drinking.

After forty or more years working with drunks in several large cities and in prisons may I say while prohibition is not a perfect system, yet it has improved many conditions in the home life and it would make greater improvements if the kickers against it would try to see more good in it than to be at the mercy of a thirst.

B. N. FOWLER.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Now since the World War, there has been established a world council, a world court and last of all a world bank. Is it not about time that we established, as a grand finale, a world conscience to run the other three?

EDWARD T. TRACY.

TINY SHUT-INS MADE HAPPY

Life didn't seem so gray today for 300 little crippled inmates of the Massachusetts Hospital Training school at Canton, because they still had strong memories of a long entertainment program given them yesterday under auspices of the Boston Evening American.

Under direction of Ralph Calvetti, the Hollywood Inn Orchestra played throughout the afternoon, and there were many singers and dancers to outdo even themselves in making the little cripples happy.

Tom Marren of the Radio-Keith-Albee office was instrumental in procuring these entertainers.

Valerie Dolora and Caroline James of "Sweet Adeline," Muriel Edwards, formerly of "Hot Chocolate," and Jack Elwyn of "Sally, Irene and Mary," were among those who took part in the program. And a man who would not reveal his identity gave ice cream and cake for the party.

The finals in the Boston Evening American Miniature Golf Championship tournament will be held in Boston Garden tonight starting at 7 o'clock.

Those persons designated to represent the 18 selected courses may enter the Garden by the east entrance and will be met by Sandy Chapman and John Hines of the Evening American staff at the press door.

The winners of the first grand prizes, for men a Majestic radio and for women a Scott Fur Coat, each for scoring the lowest score, and for the person, man or woman making the third lowest score, an English lounging chair will be announced tonight.

Final presentation of the prizes will be made next Wednesday night at the courses represented by the winners.

Winners of last week's low score prizes at the Barbecue Inn Pony Golf Links, South Sudbury, were Mrs. H. E. Wilde, Needham Heights, with 45, and Joseph Byrnes, Saxonville, with 42 for first prizes. Mrs. A. Crowe, Maynard, with 46, and Douglas Page, Lowell, with 54, won the second prizes.

At the Little Golf Course, No. 2, Wakefield: Irma Dewing, Mansfield rd., Lynnfield, 44; C. S. Cooper, 4 Arlington st., Lynn, 55; H. M. Webster, 92 Oliver st., Malden, 53; Arthur Powers, Garden st., Lynn, 62; Henry Gunita, 197 Brown st., Waltham, 56, and Henry Priestly, Lowell Electric Co., 48.

At the Little Golf Course No.3, Brighton: Mrs. A. Nickerson, 1 Chestnut st., Wellesley Hills, 60; Mrs. H. Leussing, 1 Ionia st., Auburndale, 62; E. M. Major, 23 St. James ave., 50; John Durfee, 1863 Beacon st., Brookline, 52; Albert F. Lynch, 5 Worcester st., Belmont, 52; Natural Y. Phantis, 31 Ransom rd., 53, and Anchen A. Bodarous, 184 Beacon st., Brookline, 53.

Easy Chair for Helen

HELEN MORGAN of the "Sweet Adeline" show at the Colonial Theater poses in an Old English Lounging chair at Morgan's Chain Furniture Store. This chair will be awarded to the person making the third lowest score in the finals at Boston Garden tonight in the Boston Evening American Miniature Golf Championship tournament.

ART'S ARMY FLINGS ITS TORCH

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

UNLESS the gods stretch forth a restraining hand, the Plymouth Theater, for the next 24 weeks, will remain in the full possession of the Professional Players of Boston. Oddly enough, the Professional Players are not professional players at all, but merely an earnest group of exceedingly nice people that feel an urge to missionary duty. That duty, you may be told, is to drag the drifting drama off the reefs and in quiet, resolute fashion, cast out its sins.

NO MORE eager or determined crusaders ever buckled an armor or swung a falchion. Perhaps no cause was ever so much in need of militant succor as that upon which the Professional Players have cast their labor and their resources. However that may be, there will be 24 weeks of acknowledge d (not suspected) drama at the Plymouth, starting on Monday with four weeks of Philip Merivale in "Death Takes a Holiday." The Professional Players are not of the theater, but they are most emphatically enlisted in its favor; that is, they are for it, under terms that may harass the producer but which, undoubtedly, will give the anxious, doubtful playgoer a lively run for his cherished nickels.

Nicholas Young

FOR MORE than six months the Professional Players, led by Rebekah Hobbs, have been concocting the medicine that is to rejuvenate the drama, surcharge it with virility and make everybody happy at the lively completion of the patient. How simple the specific. It is compounded chiefly by building audiences to order for good and tried plays. The Professional Players, it seems, were willing and anxious to speculate with the remedy if Mr. Lee Shubert would permit these faithful disciples of good times to pick their own plays. Mr. Shubert turned a willing ear and the good Boston ladies went to work. So, starting Monday, we shall have 24 weeks of drama with hand-picked audiences to keep the banner aflutter over the Plymouth.

OF COURSE, the operations of the Professional Players are perilously close in design and method to the which made merry business for the Theater Guild when rival adventurers in the drama cluttered the paths. As the Theater Guild has so profitably pointed out, there is no tonic for an ailing drama like a well filled subscription list. If Miss Hobbs and her assisting laborers did not know that before, they have full knowledge of it now. Making an audience to order for each day of 24 weeks is no small job, but the task is considerably lightened when the quality of product is assured. The Professional Players attended to that detail before setting out upon the selling campaign.

IT IS DOUBTFUL if any playhouse of the town could have drawn so heavily upon the drama's source of supply if the Professional Players had not thrown a determined shoulder to the wheel.

Holding Four of a Kind Quite the Proper Caper Against a Queen High Beauty

GLORIA MAY KELLEY

THIS LASS IS that perfect flapper type in the thriller "Subway Express" at the Hollis.

OLGA BIRKBECK

MISS BIRKBECK is to be seen in "Death Takes a Holiday" at the Plymouth. Philip Merivale is starred in this first of the Professional Players' presentations next Monday night.

IRENE AHLBERG

MISS AHLBERG is one of the many reasons why the Earl Carroll "Sketch Book" should prove a top notch show at the Shubert Monday night. She is a talented girl, possessing great beauty.

LILLIAN GISH

MISS GISH, after a long absence, is back on stage in "Uncle Vanya," coming to the Wilbur.

SLEEPING AT THE SWITCH CAT'S JOB

By C. J. McPHILLIPS

Electrician of "Subway Express" at the Hollis

What's all this crabbin' about stage hands not workin' and earnin' the hundred berries a week that they get? That kind of talk makes me sick. Where'd the average show be without us bimbos behind the scenes? Sure, a lot of us are pinochle sharps, but what the hell? When there's work to be done, we are right there.

Take my job now with "Subway Express." Do I get time to play pinochle? Do I get time to even think of playing pinochle? I'll tell the the cock-eyed world I don't. I just sit and sit at a switchboard for three hours at every performance, receiving cues so fast I'm dizzy. I have a typewritten cue sheet three feet long and if I ever learn it all I'm going across the river to Cambridge and apply to enter that poor man's college over there.

I've held some nifty jobs in my time but this "Subway Express" one has them all beat, for continuous, hard work. Who starts that darn train in Brooklyn? Who brings it in and out of the express stations and runs it up and down the line? Little Willie. And if I ball up an effect my stage manager acts as if he was a prima donna having a spasm. You can't stall with that bird for he knows his job and there is no use giving an alibi because he comes back so quick he makes a liar out of you.

So all you can do is sit tight. Keep your eyes glued to tha switchboard and take the stage manager's signals as they come. You are all the while hoping he will make a bull but he don't. When there is a mistake you find you have made it yourself. The signals all come by the buzzer and you have to keep your wits about you to get them straight. I shiver every night when the train is pulling into Times Square. That is where the real action of the play takes place. If I don't do the right thing there, turn the right switch and get the lights going the correct way, the effect goes bloogy and I'm the goat.

Exquisite

DAPHNE WARREN WILSON

MISS WILSON bears able aid in the Drinkwater comedy, "Bird in Hand," at the Majestic.

THIS WILL JUST WILLS THAT HE WILL NOT BE MIMICKED

Imitations had a lot to do with making George M. Cohan, Eva Tanguay and a number of famous stars popular, and still Will Mahoney, featured comedian with "Earl Carroll Sketch Book," coming to the Shubert Monday night for an engagement limited to three weeks only, expends a substantial amount each season keeping imitations of himself off the stage.

Mr. Mahoney sends scouts to view players he suspects of imitations, pays for reports from various parts of the country and has an attorney to file protests with the Managers' Protective Association and the National Vaudeville Association. Because of this peculiar trait Mr. Mahoney has incurred the displeasure of many players who sought by this method to appropriate his material. He has always been considered odd in this respect, but maintains that he learned a lesson six or seven years ago which is being concurred in almost every week by performers he encounters along Broadway.

Will Mahoney

During the season of 1922-23 Mr. Mahoney acquired a song, "I Love Me," which he says was as sure fire as waving the flag for applause and response with an audience. He had eight or nine choruses, each better than the other. He yielded to importunities suggesting the idea of cashing in on the popularity of the song and published it. Within a month a dozen imitators were singing the song. From the publication Mr. Mahoney realized $6500, and he says he would gladly have returned $12,000 to have recovered the song exclusively before he was through collecting royalties.

The words were used so often his audiences knew them ahead of him and he never has been able to find so popular a number to take its place. Only a few weeks before he entered "Earl Carroll Sketch Book" he had to threaten an injunction in order to compel the members of a famous band to take out of the program a Scotch song which scores heavily each night in "Earl Carroll Sketch Book."

Mr. Mahoney maintains that imitations of tragedy or drama are not injurious, and cites Ethel Barrymore, Joseph Jefferson, in his day, and other players. But he claims that indisputably comedy and comedians are ruined by repetition. The edge of a joke, he claims, is newness and spontaneity.

These, claim Mr. Mahoney, are self-evident truths and the comedian who encourages imitations is fostering an early finish for his career.

Glorious

GLORIA SWANSON

MISS SWANSON will be a magnet for the fans in "What a Widow!" at Loew's State.

THE BARON IS ON STAGE

Harold de Becker, new member of the Copley Players, might well be called an international character, for there is jumbled either in his heritage or in the byways of his profession something of almost every nationality. His grandfather, who was of German descent, was made a baron by King Leopold of Belgium for excellence in teaching music to the royal family. Of course that makes Mr. de Becker a baron—not that it means a thing, but in case anyone is interested," he remarks.

On his mother's side he has a distinguished uncle who was the legal adviser for Japan in the disarmament conference. Although their professions are widely separated both uncle and nephew share a love for the Orient.

SPECIALS AT RKO HOUSES

There will be two special midnight shows, one at the Keith-Albee and the other at the New B. F. Keith's, tomorrow night at one minute past twelve. At the Keith-Albee, where the fifth anniversary of the opening of that house is being celebrated, the stage show is headed by Gus Van, formerly of the internationally favorite singing team, Van and Schenck. Other important RKO Vaudeville for the midnight show includes Charles Howard and his comedians; Amac, British illusionist; the dancing team, Mills and Shea; and George and Lily Garden, musicians de luxe. The feature film is "She's My Weakness," with Sue Carrol.

Kieth's will have a special midnight show also on Monday night.

At the midnight show at Keith's, Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey, stars of "Rio Rita" and "The Cuckoos," will romp through Radio Pictures' new wartime comedy, "Half Shot at Sunrise." There will be no advance in the price of tickets at either theater.

Rattles the Old Skeletons

S. E. CLIVE

MR. CLIVE AGAIN shows his mastery of art in his great characterization in "Shooting Shadows," comedy at the Copley. The sketch is drawn from life by Charles Schmidt.

AGE NO BAR TO THIS 'VAMP'

The oldest actress on the American stage is Kate Mayhew, who plays Marina, the nurse, in the Jed Harris production of "Uncle Vanya," at the Wilbur, Monday. Among the members of the "Uncle Vanya" company Miss Mayhew is known affectionately as "Cricket." "The Vamp," and "The Little Flapper," all because she is so amazingly active and alert for her years. Only recently she celebrated her 72d year on the stage.

Her first performance on any stage was at the old Metropolitan Theater in Indianapolis when she was carried on in "Pizzaro." She went to New York in the early eighties to act in Bret Harte's "Miliss." During her long career in the theater she has played with John Wilkes Booth, Adelaide Neilson, Lawrence Barrett, Barry Sullivan, Wm. H. Crane, James O'Neill, James A. Hearn, Lewis James, and a long list of by-gone celebrities.

BORN IN SAME OLD TOWN

Reginald Denny, the Bob Brooks of "Madam Satan," at Loew's Orpheum next week, was born at Richmond, Surrey, England, also the birthplace of Ronald Colman. The comedy star has been in slapstick films so long most everyone has forgotten that he comes from a family of singers and thus his own debut was as "Prince Danilo" in "The Merry Widow." He toured in opera for several years, including India, then came to America with "The Quaker Girl."

During the war, he was a coast defense pilot for England. After appearances on the stage with John Barrymore in "Richard III," he went into pictures. He made his big hit as the central figure in the boxing stories, "The Leather Pushers."

Piano Recital

Howard Goding, pianist, announces a recital for Tuesday evening, October 28, at Jordan Hall.

First Kiss Ever the Hardest

MAURICE BLACK AND BERNICE CLAIRE

MR. BLACK WILL not take "No" for his answer. So Miss Claire had better surrender without so much fuss in "Numbered Men" at the Scollay. Perhaps she really wanted to be kissed.

THIS WORLD SERIES HAS THE SCORE

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

BACK EARLY in January we saw Jeanette MacDonald make her bow in the movies, with Ernst Lubitsch weaving gorgeous effects in "The Love Parade." That same exquisitely beauteous lassie now reappears on the Washington St. Olympia and Uptown screens, again with the wizardry of Mr. Lubitsch apparent in the direction. In fact, "Monte Carlo," the new picture, repeats much of the charm of "The Love Parade."

ONE MISSES only the blithe Mr. Chevalier, the gentleman possessed of personality plus. Yet again Mr. Lubitsch has an excellent cast; and because he works magic with his cameras, and is besides one of the very few directors who can catch the waning public interest in silver sheet singing, "Monte Carlo" turns out to be a talkie of exceptional merit. Though still on the upclimb as an actress, with distance ahead of her, Miss MacDonald does have a melodious voice. Mr. Lubitsch makes splendid use of it. His hand is everywhere in evidence, too; the fare seems super-directed, so smoothly done he work. He establishes his "atmosphere" and maintains it, holds the audience throughout and dispenses full measure of sterling comedy.

Claude Allister

LIKE THE FACE of an old, true friend, there flashes before us an episode from Booth Tarkington's "Monsieur Beaucaire." Mr. Lubitsch fits it into the warp and woof nicely. This is now it is done: A certain count, wishing to become acquainted with a certain milady whom we may term the Countess MacDonald, gets to her apartment disguised as a hairdresser. Love is born; but alacka day! The poor girl has lost her cash—gambling! She must economize; the hairdresser must go. Enters a prince—a mighty funny one too. There are complications; the disguised count wins a fortune for his fair one. But these complaints never will let the stream of true love run smooth; and it takes a cue from "Monsieur Beaucaire" to iron the tangle out and bring the lovers safely together. So endeth the lesson.

MOST EXCELLENT actors are Claude Allister, one of the best of the screen's mimics, and Jack Buchanan, stage graduate who has been superb in all his film appearances. The former is the prince; the latter, the count. Among the other familiar countenances are those of ZaSu Pitts and Albert Conti.

"Monte Carlo" may be considered the second in a series of Lubitsch diamond-bright contributions to the sound screen. So successful is he in making his vocal numbers pleasing, that he may prove the only director who can win his audience with a singing picture. Most of this varsity is pretty weak theas days; few indeed there are which have drawing power. But Mr. Lubitsch keeps on, promising to maintain the snappy pace to the very end. His genius makes Monte Carlo enjoyable entertainment, singing and all. For the which we say, "Cheerio!"

LEGION WILL TEST VALUE OF FILM

By TOM KANE

Representing "Hell's Angels," at the Tremont.

And now the acid test!

Is Hell's Angeles" the greatest of the war spectacles—the most authentic and magnificently thrilling epic of the great conflict that the film has brought to posterity?

Next week's audiences at the Tremont will tell the tale, Legionnaires attending the convention are expected to predominate in the audiences, for here is the one war picture that they have all heard about and are anxious to see.

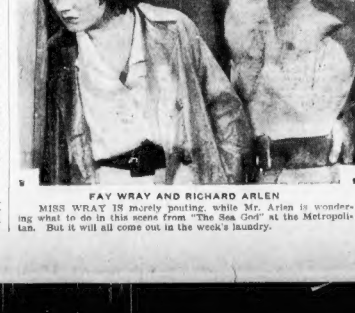
Photography, continuity, direction, acting, correctness of detail, vastness of scope and the other standards upon which the trained newspaper reviewer bases his verdict, will mean little to these boots of hardboiled critics. Having played parts in the original, they would be quick to detect any flaws in the re-enacted performances and they will view it with the same cold skepticism that a Lambs Club actor, luxuriating at a swank summer resort, watches the efforts of a struggling stock company. Brushing aside all the accepted standards of film production they will judge "Hell's Angels" almost entirely upon the score of authenticity—"Is it on the level?"

Which is a "break" for Howard Hughes, for if there is one quality which "Hell's Angels" holds to a degree hitherto unattained on the screen it is authenticity. Yes, it is on the level.

A great portion of that $4,000,000 that the young Texan poured into the production might have been saved had he contented himself with ordinary studio methods, involving the use of miniatures and faked or "process" shots.

And so the visiting legionnaire —the wise bird who can call the turn on the groan of a German Fokker or the hum of a Sop Camel—will see aerial warfare exactly as he saw it in France. It will enable him to illustrate to his wife or son some of the things he has been trying to explain for 12 years.

Lovers Sometimes Fall Out



FAY WRAY AND RICHARD ARLEN

MISS WRAY IS merely pouting, while Mr. Arlen is wondering what to do in this scene from "The Sea God" at the Metropolitan. But it will all come out in the week's laundry.

Stage and Screen

Gay Carrousel Is Life From the Way Its Ups and Downs and Ins and Outs Are Portrayed by Filmdom's Idols

JEANETTE MacDONALD AND JACK BUCHANAN
ONE WOULD think Mr. Buchanan were really serious in sighting along this hair-clipper in "Monte Carlo" at the Olympia and Uptown.

KAY JOHNSON
MISS JOHNSON bears much of the feminine burden in "Madam Satan" at Loew's Orpheum.

WINE, WOMEN AND TROUBLE
MR. GILMORE HAS Miss Gilmore, so he should worry along in "Hell's Angels" at the Tremont. Messrs. Lyon and Hall are cast as brothers, each having a hold on the sweetie's affections.

SUE CAROL
MISS CAROL is too sweet for anything, almost, in "She's My Weakness," current film at Keith-Albee.

DOROTHY LEE AND ROBERT WOOLSEY
CAKE OF CHINNING in the uproariously funny "Half Shot at Sunrise," feature film at the New B. F. Keith's. Miss Lee makes it a tickling job.

BIRTH CONTROL THEME TO BE TRIED IN FILMS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Oct. 4—This is the season for daring pictures. That doesn't necessarily mean salacious stories, but all of the big sellers have had modern themes, dealing with up to the minute problems.

Universal is about to follow the trend of the times and produce "Seed," by Charles G. Norris. The story is based on birth control and it is different from anything yet attempted in the movies. Universal took "Little Accident," which was considered extremely difficult and censorable, and made a very amusing comedy. In fact, William J. Craft who directed it did so well he was handed a new contract, so am wondering if he won't be given "Seed" to direct.

Louella O. Parsons

There is a very strong rumor in Hollywood that Corinne Griffith may accept an offer made her by Phil Goldstone to be starred in "The Single Sin." Walter Morosco, her husband, has been in conference with Mr. Goldstone and the chances are that contracts will be signed this week. "The Single Sin" is an original by A. P. Younger and an adaptation of the story will be made to suit Miss Griffith. Corinne, who is one of the most beguiful women on the screen, has been missed by fans all over the country who have written many times to ask about her plans. One of the daily papers carried a story that Miss Griffith had retired to await the coming of the stork. Probably the most surprised person in Los Angeles was Corinne herself.

Lewis Milestone didn't sign a contract with United Artists. According to inside information the deal was not consummated as reported in Hollywood and Mr. Milestone is now negotiating with Paramount. Carl Laemmle, Jr., tried his best to persuade Milestone to return to Universal, but at the moment there was no story available for him. The contract with Paramount is due to be signed any day and it is the opinion of those in Mr. Milestone's confidence that he will start work immediately, possibly on another war story.

What a handsome hero Robert Warwick used to be when he played in silent pictures and on the stage.

Robert Warwick

Perhaps I shouldn't say used to be, for that sounds as if he is a has-been but what I mean to say is we haven't seen Mr. Warwick in a long time. He is in Hollywood now and has been signed by the Fox company for one of the important roles in "Once a Sinner," which Guthrie McClintock will direct. "Once a Sinner" will probably have Constance Bennett as the leading feminine light.

* * *

Lew Cody, feeling hale and hearty and in better health than he has been in for years, writes to tell us that people have the impression that he is sick. "I never felt so well in my life," says Lew. In fact, if he had a tendency toward putting on weight he would probably get fat, he says, as his appetite is so good. Start a rumor in Hollywood and there is no stopping it. Awhile ago there was talk Lew had had a relapse and he was besieged with telegrams, telephone calls and letters. He certainly didn't look like a sick man in "What a Widow" and his work has been such in that picture that he has had any number of offers to play the light comedy parts which he does so well.

Life hasn't been all picture-making for Charlie Mack of the Moran and Mack team. Ever since he came to California he has divided his time between Hollywood and Newnall, where he has been building homes. This member of the Two Black Crows is literally feathering his nest by investing his money in homes to sell. He came out here a year or so ago and made "Two Black Crows" and "Anybody's War" for Paramount. With two pictures and four houses to show for his year in Hollywood, he and his partner, or I should say partners, are returning East to open on the R. K. O. circuit. Charlie Mack carries with him two Morans, one for each of the two acts in which he appears.

Olive Borden isn't back in town to stay. She is only here temporarily, having signed with Lee Shubert for the feminine lead in "On the Spot," a play which was produced in London and made a hit, and is now to be brought to New York. I have always considered Olive one of the prettiest girls on the screen, but she has never really had the right chance. Perhaps the stage will do for her what the screen has never been able to do, that is, bring out her personality and her charm.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: OSCAR OLDKNOW, new head of the West Coast Theaters, accompanying WINFIELD SHEEHAN, MR. and MRS. RAOUL WALSH to San Diego for a preview of "The Big Trail." The DAVID BUTLERS, the ALLAN DWANS, DESYLVA and BROWN also at San Diego for a preview of "Just Imagine." San Diego getting lots of advance showings. MARY MILES MINTER motoring from Santa Barbara. JACK PICKFORD, MARY MULHERN and JAMES KIRKWOOD also sampling some of the dark German dishes. HUGH TREVOR and BETTY COMPSON, THORNTON FREELAND and his bride, JUNE CLYDE, glimpsed at the "Temptations of 1930." The JACK MULHALLS at the Montmartre. That's all today.

On Vacation

Having completed work on Pathe's "Big Money," Robert Armstrong, accompanied by Frank McHugh, will take a vacation of three weeks in Mexico City. In the Mexican capital they will join Tay Garnett and his wife, Patsy Ruth Miller, for a tour to points of interest in that republic.

Sweetness

IRENE DELROY
MISS DELROY helps the romance along in "Oh Sailor Behave!" at the Park.

AND THE BAND PLAYS ON

The Metropolitan Grand Orchestra, Arthur Geissler, conducting, has been enlarged to 40 pieces, making it not only the largest theater orchestra in New England but one of the largest house units in America.

Fourteen musicians are now added to the old band. Of the 40 musicians each man is a soloist, and all have played in nationally famed orchestras and bands.

For the present week the new unit is introduced with an overture, "Neapolitan Nights," presented with special scenic effects designed and used exclusively for this occasion.

"Dirigible"

Fay Wray will have the feminine lead in "Dirigible," Columbia film.

Week's Films

ARMY CHIEFS EXTRAS AT $10 EACH

The United States is the melting pot for the world, but the movies are the melting pot for United States, is the conclusion reached by Robert Woolsey, one of the featured comedians in Radio Pictures' "Half Shot at Sunrise," now at the New B. F. Keith's.

Woolsey is a democratin sort of chap. He loves to meander about the lot, making friends with, and talking to, everybody.

"I have investigated, for curiosity's sake," explains Woolsey, "and I have found it to be true, that the following chaps worked on this picture as $10 a day extras!

Maj.-Gen. Alexander Ikonnikoff, formerly Admiral Kolchak's chief of staff.

"John H. Howell, formerly in the service of King Edward, and who was with the Duke of Connaught and Lord Minto when he was Governor General of Canada, and Viceroy of India.

Maj. Owen Martin who commanded the British campaign in Somaliland during the World War, and for whom the Germans offered a $200,000 reward, dead or alive.

Stanley Campbell, Canadian war ace, with 13 German planes to his credit, together with innumerable balloons.

"And a Russian who commanded a battalion of the Canadian Princess Pat regiment during the World War."

LEAVES SONG BEHIND HER

A very ingenious young lady is Bernice Claire, who plays the leading feminine role in "Numbered Men," coming to the Scollay tomorrow. Miss Claire's entrance into motion pictures was only six months ago, but since then she has been given a variety of parts which might have perturbed a less accomplished player because of the difference in talents required for each role. Up to now she has been a singer; but she quits song in "Numbered Men."

In "No, No, Nanette," this young singing actress portrayed the role of a girl who comes from a small town to New York, where she makes good on the stage. In "Spring Is Here," she enacted the part of a girl of ordinary station in life, ambitious to sing and dance, who succeeds by reason of sheer ability.

The role of a Russian peasant girl was hers in the operetta, "The Song of the Flame."

ROSITA MORENO
SENORITA MORENO has the heroine role in "The Santa Fe Trail." (Modern and Beacon.)

'OLD MADRID' THE SONG

Rosita Moreno, Spanish dancer, singer and actress, appears opposite Richard Arlen in "The Santa Fe Trail," now at the Modern and Beacon. Since she signed a contract, Miss Moreno has played with Adolphe Menjou in "Armor Audax," the Spanish talking production of "Slightly Scarlet."

Miss Morreno was from Madrid, Spain, and was signed as a result of her vaudeville career. After making her debut as a Castilian dancer in Buenos Aires in 1918, she danced in all of the important cities of Latin America and came to this country in 1925 to appear in a dancing act with Harry Delph.

RIGHT PLACE 'TIS TO DRINK IT DOWN

The English inn is famed in song and story. American travelers who have had an opportunity of wandering through the British Isles have returned charmed by the simplicity and atmosphere of the hostelries which dot the English countryside. "Bird in Hand," the latest of John Drinkwater's plays, now at the Majestic Theater, is the account of the happenings of an evening, a night and the next morning at one of these wayside public houses. The play takes its title from the name of the inn and not from the proverb which begins with the same words.

Although the name is fictitious, the inn that is represented in the comedy actually exists. It is open to any traveler who is off the beaten track during his rambles through Gloucestershire. The name was changed for the play as the account which is given in the comedy actually occurred, and Mr. Drinkwater did not wish to offend the inn-keeper and his family, with whom he had become on friendly terms through numerous sojourns when on fishing trips.

Life-Long Friend of Labor

STAUNCH DEFENDER OF AMERICANISM. Peter F. Brady of New York is here for the convention of the American Federation of Labor next week. During a long and honorable career he has been in the forefront of activity to secure and maintain the rights of the workingman. He is here in the interests of the Federation bank. (Staff photo.)

Brady Here to Attend Labor Convention

Peter F. Brady, life-long advocate and promoter of organized labor, unrelenting foe of Communism or any other element which threatens the basic principle of American government, enthusiastic aviator, and for the last seven years president of the Federation Bank and Trust Co. of New York, is among the early arrivals for the convention of the American Federation of Labor.

For 20 years Brady attended A. F. of L. conventions as a delegate. Now he comes, he says, from force of habit and with an eye to the welfare of the federation bank.

Within another decade he prophesies there will be a bank operated for the benefit of organized labor in every city from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

BANK PRESIDENT

"The New York bank of which I have the honor to be the president," Brady continued, "started with a capital of one-half million dollars. Today it has $22,000,000 and is so far beyond the experimental or adolescent stage that its future prosperity is assured. It is owned by 40 national labor unions and by about 150 New York locals.

"The bank is run on exactly the same principle as any similar institution and its directors are trade unionists and representative business men."

He is an enthusiastic aviator and has crossed the American continent 19 times by the air route.

PRAISES AIR PORT

"I am glad to see," he said, "such tremendous improvement in the Boston air port since I was here two years ago. I have made several flights as well as landings at this field and hope to make others.

"About the only flying experience that I have not had is the making of a forced jump or in breaking my neck. There is, however, not much danger of the latter eventuality these days."

Speaking of his antipathy to Communism and "red" activities, Brady praised the manner in which the New York police have handled this element. He suggested that on the occasion of President Hoover's visit the Boston police might do well to copy New York police methods.

He referred to the New York principle of never using clubs or strong arm methods on "red" mobs or gatherings, that being "just what they want to create public sympathy for their cause when such occurrences are pictured in the newspapers."

NOT A STRANGER

Brady is no stranger to Boston. He days as an apprentice in the photo-engraving industry were passed here.

"Yes," he said with a smile, "I used to 'board' in Pie Alley and am not boasting when I say that I know every other alley, with or without pie in that vicinity."

Besides being a member of Mayor Walker's commission on aviation and airports, Brady is a member of the New York State aviation commission. He also holds a commission as lieutenant-colonel in the Army Reserve Corps.

Jobless Suspected of Starting Blaze

Falmouth, Oct. 4—The theory that the forest fire which threatened to destroy the home of Manuel P. Rose of Hatchville yesterday was caused by incendiaries to obtain employment as fighters was advanced by police today.

The fire started briskly only a few moments after two fire patrols passed the place.

"Hell's Angels," at the Tremont. (Sixth week.) Close view of the World War as it concerned the boys who fought in the clouds. Most thrilling film spectacle yet created.

* * *

"Blackbirds of 1930," at the Lyric. (Fifth week.) Revue in the darker shades; or, as you might say, just as they make it on Harlem. Good entertainment—fast and noisy.

Stage and Screen

NEW FILMING PROCESS IS PERFECTED

Perfection of technical developments that may exert a revolutionary effect on talking picture entertainment and will make possible the projection of wide screen pictures on ordinary projection machines is announced by Louis B. Mayer, vice-president in charge of production for M-G-M.

The new type of film, which will be known as "Realife," will provide the wide-film effect hitherto possible only by the use of special projection machines at a cost prohibitive to the average theater.

According to Mr. Mayer's announcement, only a few slight changes in the projection machine commonly in use throughout the world will be necessary. The same projector will handle both the new and old types of film without additional expense to the theater owner.

"There are several advantages to be derived from the 'Realife' film," said Mr. Mayer. "First, there is the common availability of the wide screen. Second, there is a three-dimensional approach, or the creation of better perspective through greater depth of focus. In the third place, we will have much greater naturalness, avoiding the loss of realism that often follows a shallow focus. We will have a greater sweep and scope in motion picture photography, permitting the effective screening of mass spectacles."

'TWO FINGERS' IS SIGNAL

Talking pictures have developed a new sign language used on the "sets" during filming, says Melville Browne, director of "She's My Weakness," now at the Keith-Albee.

"In the days of silent films," he says, "it was a comparatively simple matter to tell a player when to enter the scene, when to laugh, or when to shoot a revolver.

"Now it isn't so simple. A director can't call out to a waiting actor because the microphone will pick up the sound. A tense silence prevails whenever the cameras are in action.

"To combat this, I have arranged a series of finger signals which I use on every production. The first thing I do when beginning a picture is to coach the players in this sign language.

"Raising one finger means to enter; two fingers to begin talking, and so on. Sometimes, when the player is not visible and must be signaled, I have the electricians rig up a light. When it flashes on, the player knows it is his turn to enter the scene."

"Tol'able David"

George Duryea is being tutored by a dyed-in-the-wool "hill-billy" for his part in "Tol'able David," which John Blystone is directing for Columbia.

Mutual Burlesquers

Gayety — Howard

There will be a midnight show at the Gayety every night next week. The first one will begin tomorrow night at five minutes after midnight. This action was necessary to give all a chance to see "Peek-A-Boo." The American Legion convention is expected to make the midnight shows special attractions. There will be a number of appropriate bits introduced at each, and there will also be special numbers introduced for the benefit of the legionnaires who attend.

Jackie James

The whole show is new from start to finish. This policy has been adopted by the Mutual Burlesque Association. Hal Rathburn, Leo Fields, Erin Jackson and Jackie James are featured performers. Tom Griffin, Bert Saunders, Meehan and Newman and other clever artists are included.

Now comes to the Old Howard that dancing and singing star, Mae Brown. Her burlesque organization is well supplied with comedy as well as beauty. Harry Evanson has merry wit and smart sayings. Jean Bedini is another favorite. The company, known as the "20th Century," is sure to provide a bright entertainment for American Legion Week." Other winners will be Kitty Warren, Elsie Huff and Dottie Alexandria.

Mae Brown

There will be a midnight show on Monday morning starting at 1205 a. m. and there will also be a midnight show every night during the week with the exception of Saturday. As an extra added attraction engaged for the week will be the appearance of Con O'Kelley, champion heavyweight of Ireland.

"Brothers"

Claire McDowell and Francis McDonald, character delineators, have been added to the cast of Columbia's "Brothers." Walter Lang is directing the screen version of the Bert Lytell stage play with Lytell in his original role.

The New Plays

PLYMOUTH—"Death Takes a Holiday," adapted by Walter Ferris from a play by Alberto Casella. First of the Professional Players' presentations. Philip Merivale is starred. Included in the supporting cast are Thomas Bate, Julian Royce, Eleanor Stuart, Wallace Erksine, Helen Vinson and Charlotte Andrews. Settings by Rollo Wayne; staged by Lawrence Marston. Produced by Lee Shubert.

SHUBERT—Earl Carroll Sketch Book, a revue in 53 scenes. Sketches by Eddie Cantor; lyrics and music by E. Y. Harburg and Jay Gorney. Featured in the cast are Will Mahoney, William Demarest and The Three Sailors. Mention also may be made of beautiful girls, brilliant costumes and loads of scenery. Dialogue staged by Edgar MacGregor; dances by LeRoy Prinz. Produced by Earl Carroll.

* * *

WILBUR—"Uncle Vanya," a comedy by Anton Chekhov. Active version by Rose Caylor. The featured player is Lillian Gish, reclaimed from filmland. In the supporting cast are Osgood Perkins, Walter Connolly, Zita Johann, Kate Mayhew, Eugene Powers, Eduardo Cianelli, Isabel Vernon and Harold Johnsrood. Settings by Jo Mielziner; produced by Jed Harris.

BATON LIFTED BY HENSCHEL NEXT WEEK

Sir George Henschel, as the Boston Symphony Orchestra's first conductor and its guest of honor for the week, will open its season in Symphony Hall next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. Sir George will then conduct the original program of October 22, 1881, with the exception of one number. It will include Beethoven's overture to the "Dedication of the House"; Symphony in B-flat of Haydn; airs from Gluck's "Orpheus" and Bruch's "Odysseus," to be sung by Margaret Katzenstein (the original soloist was Miss Annie Louise Cary); ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde"; and Wagner's prelude to "Die Meistersinger."

Dr. Serge Koussevitzky will first appear at the concerts on October 17 and 18, then conducting an Ode for Orchestra and Chorus, written especially for the orchestra's anniversary by Edward Burlingame Hill to the text of Robert Hillyer. This will be the first of an impressive list of new scores which have been especially composed for the orchestra's jubilee year by the foremost living composers.

Mayor Called On to Halt Gangsters

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

"The Edgewater Kid," Polack Annie's man, is murdered. Goldie Gorgon's North Side gang, which the Kid was a member, accuses Kinky King, leader of the West Side gang. Kinky's men get the Kid for taking Annie from him. Later Kinky is found murdered, a gold revolver, similar to that possessed by Goldie, beside him. To satisfy the public's demand for action, the police chief arrests Annie. He refuses Goldie's request for her release. In revenge, Goldie's gang throws the theater district into darkness and destroys public property.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 8

TEN O'CLOCK NEXT morning. The mayor of the Big Burg sat at his desk. There were purple circles beneath his eyes. His beefy cheeks were flushed. He was nervous and anxious. Before him lay a morning paper, and on the floor lay others.

The city's shame shrieked from the headlines. The gangsters, tolerated too long as they wrecked vengeance and blackmail among their own kind and other lawbreakers, had jumped the fences and crippled public works, destroyed private property, endangered life and put half the town out of commission.

Acrimonious editorials demanded state intervention. If the despotism of gang rule had grown so invincible that the Chief Executive could not cope with such a preposterous condition as had manifested itself last night, then it was high time for broader powers to take hold. One paper suggested that the citizens arm and protect their safety and their community honor.

Leo," began the mayor, "a sweet mess has been wished on me."

The Chief of Police grunted.

"There's only one thing we can do," he sighed.

"Yes? And—"

Chief Gives In

"Spring Polack Annie. . . oh, not this minute—but give our word that she will walk through the doors in a day or two. No tellin' where Goldie'll stop if we don't. I'm sure I can call him off."

"Getting chicken-livered, eh? In the first place, Jim, you—"

"Plactin' the blame'll get us nowhere. If it was a boner, let's think the bones out of it. I ain't gettin' yellow—but let's be practical. They can turn the town inside down before we can stop 'em—if we can at all."

The mayor turned to his desk. He thumped it, glared at the news papers, shuddered, gathered them into a bulky lump and rammed them into his waste basket.

"We can't do a thing now," he groaned. "Any minute a committee of civic leaders is coming to call on me—with the report. If I let this ride after the way I grandstanded her arrest, I'd be laughed out of city limits. I'm at the mercy of those vultures on the other hand and these volunteers on the other. I got to stall. After I get my breath, we'll try something. Right now—"

The Mayor's secretary poked his head in and nodded.

"They're here," said His Honor, with a helpless shrug. "Better stick, but say nothing unless I ask you to, and then chime in with me. Don't mention Annie. We deny that she had anything to do with this at all, see? . . . All right, Chester, bring the coroner's jury in."

Filed Into Office

They solemnly filed into the Mayor's office—eight of them. Three men of affluence four men of position and one man of prominence. She was Mrs. Gurney Taylor, whose husband was a power on 'Change. She headed the Women's Civic League. She represented the women at large—or thought she did.

Close behind her was the Rev. Chesley Nottingham, pastor of an exclusive silk-stocking church. He was a crusader and critic whose sermons were widely reported because he "had something to say". . . didn't preach about the Bible, but laid into vice and contempt of the Constitution—one amendment of it, anyway.

John Fox Wagner, banker, tanned by the Florida sun and flushed with excessive living, looked stern. He had engineered the biggest and rawest bank merger of the city after having surreptitiously bought up control of most of the small banks. Next was Charles V. Hillers, editor of the daily with the richest class of readers and the poorest number of buyers. A thin, grapper little fellow with a booming voice, he was for vested interest, peace, prosperity and the Republican party.

Sam Mandelbaum, proprietor of the busiest department store, headed the committee. He had given thousands to educate the poor children in music and literature. In his basement slaved and sweated their

SEE NEED FOR REDUCTION OF PRICE

Drive Directed Against Stores That Have Failed to Lower Rates

While Bay State mayors hastened today to approve the investigation ordered by Gov. Allen into the price of bread, reports from scattered places indicated that some communities had been given the benefit of descending wheat prices.

Chain stores in Greater Boston have already cut their prices. The pinch, however, is directed against one that had failed to lower price.

The retail price of bread in Worcester, it was learned, has been cut from one to two cents a loaf. Bread there is selling as low as 7 cents as compared with the former minimum of 8 cents. The largest loaves are 16 instead of 12.

Reductions in that city have likewise been reflected in cuts in the surrounding towns.

Governor Allen ordered the State action on the necessaries of life to take action as a result of the failure of bakers, in general throughout the State, to lower prices in conformity with the recent reductions in the price of wheat flour.

The present price of bread in Boston is 8½ cents a pound, a reduction of only a tenth of a cent since last year at this time, while flour has dropped from $7 to $4.50 per 196 pound barrel.

"I agree most heartily with Governor Allen that the price of bread should come down," said Mayor John J. Whelan of Chelsea today. "It should have come down by voluntary action on the part of the bakers."

"A slight difference in the price of bread means much to poor families, in which all the pennies count, and where bread is the chief article of the family diet," said Mayor Andrew A. Casassa of Revere. "The price of bread should drop with the price of flour."

Federal government experts declared that a cut of $2.50 in the cost of flour should be accompanied by a saving of at least one cent per pound in the price to the housewife.

SULLIVAN ASKS PARTY TO WORK

"One vote has decided the governorship of Massachusetts," Edward Everett, twice governor of Massachusetts, lost that office on a recount by one vote," declared former Asst. Dist. Atty. Harold W. Sullivan, Democratic nominee for secretary of state at a registration rally held by the Democratic committee at the Hotel Commander, Cambridge, last night.

"A vote is like a snowflake," said Mr. Sullivan. "Alone it may seem unimportant, but when mobilized, snowflakes will stop the mightiest engine. There are nearly a half million registered Democrats in this State, and as many more who could be registered. Let each Democrat register one person and the Democratic victory that is at hand will be made sweeping, and the G. O. P. locomotive will be found stalled and abandoned."

CAMILLA MacDONALD BARBARA O'CONNELL

ATTIRED AS DAINTY PURITAN maids, Camilla MacDonald and Barbara O'Connell, both of Foster st., Brighton, took an active part in the "Toy parade" this morning that closed the tercentenary celebration at Brighton. (Staff photo.)

One thousand children participated in the Brighton parade which opened the final festivities of the tercentenary celebration in that section today.

The toy parade lead by Joseph P. Maguire Jr. of 14 Elmira st., on horseback marched down Washington st. to Chestnut ave. and into Wilson Park, where prize were awarded. Among the features were children representing George Washington, Paul Revere, Miss Brighton and Mary Chilton.

The feature parade in the afternoon listed five divisions led by Chief Marshal M. T. Carney with James A. Sawyer, honorary chief marshal. The route covered Oak sq. to Washington st., to Cambridge st., to Brighton ave., to Harvard ave., to Cambridge st., to North Harvard st., to Spur st., and into the Smith Playground.

Governor Allen and Mayor Curley were invited . . . of the day as well as various of the C. A. E. W. C. and other nearby tercentenary societies.

The children received their usual allotments of ice cream, with Mrs. Mary Hill Richards in charge. Francis B. McKinney, chairman of the committee, was in charge of all arrangements.

FIVE-HOUR DAY DRIVE PLANNED

Officers of the metal workers department of the American Federation of Labor at Hotel Statler today planned for the drive to be made on the floor of the A. F. of L. convention next week for the proposed five-hour day.

While this conference was on President William Green of the Federation was in consultation with the executive committee of the organization.

President Green will head a committee which will meet President Hoover at the American Legion convention Monday afternoon and escort him to Hotel Statler. There the ... Hoover will address the ... legion's ... session.

... from ... of ... and ... interest at the Statler.

President Michael J. McDonough said that the Building Trades Department in session at Hotel Bradford will submit a report of business to the parent body next week.

RUSSELL CALLS OFF FETE IN CAMBRIDGE

Omission of Several Racial Groups Halts the Plan for International Festival

Because some racial groups were not included, Mayor Richard M. Russell of Cambridge today called off the International Festival scheduled for tomorrow at Sanders Theater, as the closing event in the city's tercentenary celebration.

Elaborate plans had been made. Several national groups had outfitted themselves with native costumes, numerous rehearsals had been held and Governor Allen and other dignitaries had been invited.

"At the request of the Citizens' Tercentenary committee, organized two years ago, and with the approval of the tercentenary committee which I appointed, I had authorized expenditures of a part of the tercentenary appropriation for a festival in which I understood all racial groups were to be represented," said Mayor Russell.

"I now find that some groups have been omitted, I therefore announce that the festival scheduled for Sunday at 1:30 at Sanders Theater is postponed until further notice."

Among groups, when were to have been represented are the Lithuanian, Jewish, Italian, Polish and Franco-American.

The committee consisted of Chairman H. M. Gerry, Daniel Parkley, Mrs. D. A. Huntington, Harry W. Joel, Peter Mc..., Mrs. Helen Mountain, Joseph McElroy, Thomas F. Sullivan, Chester R. Swenson, James J. Scully and Stephen H. Mahoney.

Chairman Gerry said he knew nothing about the overnight until it was called to his attention by ... Russell. He said the matter would be taken up at a meeting tomorrow.

THRILLS FOR LEGIONNAIRES will be supplied at the eighth day air meet that opened today at the East Boston Airport. Olivia Matthews, one of Boston's fairest pilots, was among the entrants in the speed race scheduled for this afternoon. (Staff photo.)

HARVARD OPENS WITH TWIN GRID BILL

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Welcome Buddy
C'mon to Harvard
Football Opening

Bring Along Madelon
Mme. Armentieres, Non!
Two Games Today

Harvard Backs More Plentiful Than Cooties

Top o' the morning' Buddy. Howdy, boys of the American Legion. Welcome to Our City. Danged nur old hide if we ain't plumb tickled to see you! Draw up a chair and—no, better still, c'mon out to Harvard and see our pet football team in its first warmup of the season against the Green Mountain Boys and the Coast Guard Academy elevens. S'pose you have Madelon and M'm'selle from Armentieres along with you, Parlay-voo. Bring Madelon to the game. But that gal from Armentieres, who in 40 years hadn't washed her ears, Parlay-voo, Parlay-voo, why, eh—now we'll leave it to you, Buddy—she, eh, er, would sorta feel out of place among our well-washed Harvard sweeties.

Mademoiselle from Armentieres Parlay-voo—if she was how clean are Harvard's ears. Parlay-voo, she'd flood the Stadium with salty tears and want to lick up the sand here and that couldn't do or pollution your Rink jawsky, Parlay-voo!

But bring Madelon along to the Stadium, Buddy. See will feel right at home among the Harvard beauties. All the gals go to the football games here, Buddy. You see this is about the biggest and best football town on the map. Harvard is synonymous with football, and we have Boston College, Boston University, Tufts, M. I. T., Northeastern and a whole flock of high and prep schools here. Maybe those scholastic football games don't draw! Why, we're such rabid football fans up in this neck of the woods that you'll often see bigger crowds at schoolboy football games here than you will see at college games elsewhere.

George Underwood

When we mean big crowds, Buddy, we mean big crowds, numerically, with the accent on the numerically. We once were editing a schoolboy's report of a scholastic game and came to a sentence which read: "The game was witnessed by a large and intelligent gathering."

What do you mean?" we queried. "Why, so-and so tells me the attendance wasn't 200. And how do you know the gathering was intelligent?"

"I'm always accurate," grinned the youngster. Big Bill Edwards was there, and he is large—weighs almost 300 pounds. The principal of the school was there, and he's intelligent."

You'll have to acknowledge, Buddy, the kid was right. The game "was witnessed by a large and intelligent gathering."

Boston not only is about the biggest and best football town on the map, Buddy, but it is the oldest. We had an organized football club here before the game was heard of elsewhere in the little old U. S. A.

ON BOSTON COMMON

If you walk through Boston Common, Buddy, alongside one of the paths you will see a tall marble slab on which is inscribed

"On This Field the Oneida Football Club, of Boston, the First Organized Football Club in the United States, Played Against All Comers from 1862 to 1865. The Oneida Goal Line Was Never Crossed."

That was some record, Buddy —not having your goal line crossed in four years. Beat that, Buddy, beat that!

That Oneida memorial was placed on Boston Common in 1925 by seven surviving members of the famous team, four of which attended the unveiling. All of them were octogenarians. Raised 'em tough in those days, Buddy, didn't they? The good New England stock can't be beat.

Football can't be such a brutal, exhausting game, Buddy. Football players seemed to be long-lived, anyway. Back in 1924, when they celebrated the inaugural Princeton-Rutgers contest of 1869, which was the first American collegiate game ever played, it was found that eight of the original Rutgers team were still living and seven of the original Orange and Black outfit. Who was that who said athletics was bad for the heart?

DO YOU REMEMBER—

But it is taking you and Madelon and the Mademoiselle from Armentieres — Pardon, M'sieu, we forgot you left her and her unwashed ears in that little sidewalk cafe on the Boulevard Montparnasse. Or was it at Joe Zelli's or Jed Kiley's? Say, wonder if Henry's New York bar still is there down in the cellar on the Rue Daunou? Wonder what's become of the white-aproned Harry Pery and "Chips" Brighton, who used to uncork that bubbling Vin Rouge and Vin Blanc, and when we were flush, the real stuff, champagne, "tittled laughter of the peasant girls of France." Wonder if Tommy Lyman still is warbling those songs which used to hush our boisterousness, twang our heartstrings and take us poor, homesick, trying-to-forget-and-stick-it - out youngsters back across the Atlantic to Ma and Dad and the girl we left behind us? Ah, Tommy Lyman, "Tommy the Tubercular Tenor," a good song, when sung as Tommy used to croon them, was better than a sermon.

Heigho, Buddy. We're not on the Rue de la Paix or the Place de la Concorde. We're right here on Tremont St., headed for Harvard Stadium, across the Charles and the launching of the football season. And, as we started to say, it is taking you and Madelon and the Mam'selle from Armentieres — mais oui! non! non!—a long time to get there.

A GREAT TEAM

Harvard has a great team this year, Buddy, a great team. Yes, we have heard those sad, sad wails about lack of linemen, injuries and goodness knows what not. You never heard a football coach at the start of the season own up to having anything except a crippled bunch of misfits. They're all looking for an alibi. It is the nature of a football coach to paint a pessimistic picture, just as it is the nature of a fight manager to proclaim that his champion can lick any guy in the world.

Coach Arnold Horween isn't going to show any more of Harvard's football hand that he has to this afternoon. He'll keep his stars under wraps as much as possible and trick plays and formations are likely to be noticeable by their absence.

But with two games — you know the Crimson-shirted warriors are going to line up against the Coast Guard boys as well as the University of Vermont—Arnie will have to trot out most of his material. Most of the stars will be used a couple of minutes or so in there this afternoon, anyway.

The football experts will center their attention on just how the guards and tackles and ends on both sides of Captain Ben Ticknor behave. The experts say Harvard has a somewhat weak line.

But Madelon and you and I, Buddy, will be watching those Harvard backs, about the speediest, trickiest, slipperiest, line-buckingest bunch in captivity.

Harvard backs are more plentiful than cooties in St. Michel.

As you were, men! As you were!

without bringing any wrinkles to the brow of Manager Gabby Street of the Red Birds.

Rube Walberg started to do a little fanning himself in the second half of the second chukker when he whiffed Bottomley and Hafey, two of the big strikers for the Cards. Blades filed out to Haas and the side were setting down for a first session on the mound duty. Lindstrom struck another wild one over the fence, scoring when Frisch and Orsatti reached home on the same play. But Al was caught napping on a double play and Wild Bill Hallahan continued to pitch airtight in the pinches.

When Lindy again retired the Cardinals in order and but nine men had faced him with three innings planned into the record books.

But Rube's reign was short-lived, for the first Cardinal up in the fourth, Mr. Taylor Douthit poled a ball out of the park for a home run and the Cardinals jumped into the lead.

Recalled hurriedly to replace the wayward Walberg when he hit a batter with a pitched ball, Rube retired the side with a grand fielding play, by a narrow margin and the Card [illegible] marker that Douthit tacked on the score with his four-base clout.

In the fifth session Joe Boley, A's shortstop, nearly dead-locked the pastime by getting a hold of one of Hallahan's pitches. The ball sailed out to right field and looked as though it was labelled for the bleacherites as they rose to make the catch and the capture. But the ball hit the bleacher fence and bounded back on the field. Boley got but a single on his healthy smash.

The first real batting surge that the Cardinals have procured in this contest Wendell series came in the fifth inning when, with one down, when Blades Wilson and Gelbert singled in succession with Bottomley batting. Simmons jogged to bat and made a great recovery and threw to Dykes, who got Wilson trying to get into third. Walberg walked Hallahan, the next batter, and Willie Shores was sent in to pitch for the Mackmen. Douthit, who had previously connected for a homer, couldn't produce with opportunities of knocking, and was thrown out by Bishop and Lee Grabowski was purposed but one run. They stepped into the sixth session two runs to the good.

Bottomley Says Cards Still Confident of Victory

By JIM BOTTOMLEY

First Baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

St. Louis, Oct. 4—It takes more than two pitchers to win a World Series—and I feel sure the Athletics will find it so before the series is through.

It may be surprising to some fans to learn that Gabby Street and the entire team think we have an even chance of winning the World Series. There are several reasons for this:

No. 1—It is not likely that either Grove or Earnshaw will oppose us in the third game of the series today.

No. 2—We made almost twice as many hits off Grove as the A's did against Grimes, yet lost. We figure to win if Grimes and Grove hook up in another slab duel.

No. 3—In the next three games will be played on our home grounds.

No. 4—I think the pitchers we have ready for action now are superior to those the A's have. As ample proof of this, consider the fine pitching performances turned in by Lindsey and Johnson after Rhem was knocked out of the box in the second game.

[illegible] We are not alike to win at least one of those games at Shibe Park was because our batting eyes were dim. In this respect, I am the chief offender, not having made a safe blow in either game.

Bottomley Expects Cards to Begin Heavy Hitting

Unless all signs fail we ought to massage that leather all over the lot in the third game.

Most of the boys think Connie Mack will send Shores to the box today while others lean toward Walberg.

I really do not think it will make much difference if Gabby Street should decide to send Haines to the hill against either Shores or Walberg we would have a big edge.

It is gratifying to know that none of the boys have lost confidence without which no team can expect to win.

I must again recall that crucial [illegible] Athletics whose weakness [illegible] that we [illegible] That was because they did not perform with our all around strength [illegible] before this series is over.

Cards Play Best When Odds Are Against Them

We have been the under dogs all season and we are the underdogs now, because, to borrow a golf term, the A's are two up on us.

But it is under just such circumstances that we are at our best.

There was a good omen for us at Shibe Park during the second game. An unpitched ball started to play the "St. Louis Blues" and then switched into "Happy Days Are Here Again."

I cannot yet say that we have had any happy days this series—but I am looking for one today, and another one Sunday. If and when the chance to pass it will be time enough to talk about the rest of the games.

Third Game Sidelights

The doors of the bleachers and pavilion were thrown open at 8 a. m. and soon all was astir on the western front. At that early hour 2000 men, women and children were in line. At 1 p. m. the bleachers were filled to the last inch with an excited, shouting mass of humanity.

[illegible] Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, was one of the early arrivals. He was kept busy doffing his hat to friends in adjoining boxes, revealing his shock of [illegible] gray [illegible]

The [illegible] and [illegible] from their dug-out and started tossing the ball back and forth near the third base line. The band took the hint and moved from center field to a position on the grass back of third.

Lynn English Favorite to Defeat Medford

The Lynn English at Medford scrap is the big attraction of the day, although English is a heavy favorite to defeat Medford.

Tony Geniawicz will try to add several touchdowns to his big total for the season. The Lynn team's backfield is clicking now and will give Medford trouble. McGovern to Geniawicz is a lateral passing combination which functions perfectly.

Rex Kidd and his Melrose mates will face Watertown. Watertown because of the school strike, has but 11 players, light and inexperienced, but probably will last through the game. With the assistance of Melrose gridmen

Haverhill and Malden Clash at Haverhill

Salem, an undefeated team, plays host to Chelsea this afternoon. Norman Rand, Heffernan, Axelrod and Cullen, at Salem, make up a splendid backfield. The line was great at the start of the season, but a couple of easy games gave the boys a chance to learn line play and Salem will be a dangerous opponent for the rest of its schedule.

Malden, also unbeaten, this fall rides to Haverhill. Malden has had two hard games to start the season, and has come along well. Haverhill won through its title easily and the strength of the team is an unknown quantity. The home eleven [illegible] Malden 6 p. m.

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play

THAT DISTANCE DETAIL

Most beginners, and indeed many golfers who have played for some time, are quite at a loss to know how far away they should stand from the ball. Take up a position so that you can get a side view of yourself in a long mirror. (I am presuming that you are doing a little shadow golf at home.) See that the arms hang comfortably.

Picture 1 shows an address with the toe of the club. Bobby Jones does it that way. It provides an easy method of learning to play correctly from the inside out.

MAXIMUM STRENGTH

Try to keep the same bend that you had in the previous picture and then extend the arms as far out as they will go, as in Picture 2. You seldom see golfers do that but some do it in attempting to cure heeling.

As a matter of fact, that stretch is more likely to aggravate heeling, since you are inclined to fall in on the ball through losing your balance forward.

PLAYING IN TOO CLOSE

If you addressed the ball with your hands as close to the body as the above, you would certainly hear about it from your fellow golfers.

The unwritten law of the etiquette of golf is "Wait until you are asked before giving advice." But how many do it?

However, those who play in the fashion of Picture 3 should be spoken to—and sharply at that, for their own good.

SANTA DEFEATS BERTAZZOLO AT ARENA

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Throwing punches from every angle, Jose Santa of Portugal, giant of the prize ring, was awarded the decision in his 10-round bout with Riccardo Bertazzolo of Italy in the feature bout of the Argonne A. A. show at the Arena.

Both Bertazzolo and Santa, hammered away with left and right hand punches from the gong which set them off in the first round until the 10 rounds came to a close. There was not a quiet moment at any time during the contest.

Round after round, like human windmills the colossal [illegible] showered thundering blows on each other. Bertazzolo weighed 211 pounds while his victorious opponent tipped the beam at 263 pounds.

Bertazzolo showed a much better knowledge of boxing than Santa and it was the Italian's clever blocking that kept Santa's murderous punches failing on his back and arms without doing much damage.

In the eighth round Bertazzolo bounced a left hand punch off the chest of Johnny Marin, the referee. This was about the nearest approach to a K. O. in the entire fight.

Price, With Broken Rib, Refuses to Quit

In the preliminaries, Teddy Baldock of Watertown lost to Gabby Hodad of Armenia by a technical K. O. Leslie was dropped to the canvas twice and one of his seconds tossed in the towel in the third frame, stopping the bout.

Alf Ros of Spain defeated Speed Ketchel of Haverhill, in their eight round battle. The six-rounder between Stanley Winerykl of Lawrence and Al Gillett of New Bedford was won by the Lawrence boxer, while the other six-rounder found John Venuti of the North End getting the verdict over Buster Price of Lynn.

Buster Price, by the way, received a broken rib in the second round, but had the courage to keep on battling through the four rounds.

Frankie Herlihy of Lynn defeated Johnny Walker, Easton, in another four-rounder.

Andy Callahan and Sammy Fuller will fight their third and rubber bout for the Argonne A. A. at the Boston Arena on Tuesday evening, October 21.

The clash will be for the N. E. lightweight crown which Fuller took from Callahan in their last bout at Tiverton, Rhode Island.

Bay State Leslie Cup Team Trails New York and Penn.

Pine Valley, N. J., Oct. 4—New York, defending champion, is leading, six points ahead of Pennsylvania, as the first half of the four-cornered contest for the 25-year-old Robert W. Leslie Cup came to an end over Pine Valley course.

The final standing of the first day's matches gave New York 32¼ points, Pennsylvania 26¼ points, Massachusetts 21 and Canada 10.

At the conclusion of the morning four-ball match, the defenders of the international trophy were trailing Pennsylvania by 3 points. But in the afternoon they amassed 23¼ points to Pennsylvania's 15¼.

Jess Sweetser, captain of the New York team, hung up the first clean sweep of the singles, and in so doing he equaled Pine Valley's 18-hole record of 70, made by George V. Rotan of Texas in 1922. He was out in 34, one under par and back in 36, one over, and all even with par for one round trip.

Big Jess defeated Max Marston, Merion's ex-national champion, 6 to 5; Ross Somerville, Canadian amateur king, 4 and 2, and Joe Batchelder of Brae-Burn, 3 and 2.

Sweetser a record-equaling round was an inch short of being a record-breaking jaunt. In spite of three putts at the 13th, he found himself on the home green needing a 10-foot putt for a 69. But his jab rolled past the cup, offline by an inch, and he had to be content with a 70.

Gene Homans, who last week lost to Bobby Jones in the national amateur final, played right behind Sweetser and matched his clean sweep with three more points for New York. Watts Gunn of Pittsburgh, J. Cameron of Canada and E. Ward of Massachusetts all drew blanks against Gene.

Phil Perkins, ex-British amateur champion, who now lives in New York; Eddie Driggs and Sid Noyes Jr., were the other cup defenders who came home with all the points there were.

Meanwhile, only two Pennsylvanians were able to duplicate the all-for-one act. Woodie Platt and young Duff McCullough. Platt downed J. B. Nichols of Canada, 4 and 3; Maurice McCarthy, one time intercollegiate champion, 2 and 1, and William Blaney of Massachusetts, 2 and 1.

McCullough won from M. F. Rodgers, Canada; G. Smart, Massachusetts, and Paul Anderson, over York.

After the workout, French cut his squad from 78 to 55 players.

Crimson Yearling Grid Squad Is Cut

Coach Art French put his Harvard freshman football squad through a strenuous scrimmage for offensive plays against the freshman dormitory teams.

The former Crimson leader did not allow his teams to score on the scrubs, whom he kept on the defensive all the time.

After the workout, French cut his squad from 78 to 55 players.

CHICAGO NINE LOSES LAST GAME

Sendai, Japan, Oct. 4 (AP)—The University of Chicago baseball squad, which invaded Japan on a tour for fifteen games with various organizations and schools here, ended its playing round today by losing to the Tomon Club, 5 to 4.

Chicago however secured an even break in the total games, winning and losing seven and playing one tie.

Dilboy Post Plays University Eleven

Dilboy Post is the first semi-pro team to engage in a major game this season. They meet the University A. A. eleven at Dilboy Field, Somerville, tomorrow afternoon.

Included in the University lineup will be such well known ex-Harvard men as Dick O'Connell, Dave Guarnaccia, Tom "Giddyap" Gilligan, Carl Linder, Maddy Sayles, Jack Prior, Joe Crosby, Burk Evans Ernest Garnache, Ben Dorman, El Levin, Howie Burns and Dave Shaw.

SUAREZ WINS FROM MILLER

New York, Oct. 4 (US)—Juano Suarez, former butcher boy in Buenos Aires, was awarded a well-earned decision over Ray Miller, Chicago southpaw, after a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

The show served as an opener for the winter [illegible] in the Eighth Ave. emporium.

Miller was pretty well beaten up when the final bell was sounded. His face and neck had welts all over them and the claret was flowing from his mouth and left eye.

Mills opened the first round with a good offensive and had the South American on the go for four rounds. In the fifth however, Suarez turned the tide of the battle with a left to the chin that sent Miller to the floor for a short count. From then on it was a walkaway for the former butcher boy.

Bancroft and Club Sail for Havana

New York, Oct. 4 (INS)—Dave Bancroft and his team of big league ex's sail today for a ten-day series of exhibition games in Havana.

The members of the party include Walter (Rabbit) Maranville, Boston shortstop; Tom Oliver Boston pitcher; Russell Scarritt, Red Sox outfielder and Tom Zachary, pitcher for the Braves.

Former Washington Grid Coach Dead

Olympia Wash., Oct. 4 (INS)—[illegible] Bagshaw, who coached University of Washington football teams for ten years, was dead here today from a heart attack.

Sandlot Skirmishing

Sandlot gridirons around Greater Boston will be popping with action tomorrow afternoon with practically all the big and small, amateur and semipro teams of any note, getting into battle.

The Pera Marquettes, rated as the foremost of the semi-pro clubs in Greater Boston, faces its third clash of the season with the strong Weymouth A. C. The game will be at the C. J. Lee Playground in Southie.

Weymouth has got a number of stars in its lineup but they'll have to go some to outshine the Casey roster with such luminaries as Weston, Bushman, Murphy, Eberhan, Ohrenberger, Kilroy, Kittredge, O'Leary, Connelly and Cronan.

Another stellar attraction looms at Dilboy Field, Somerville, with the University A. A. of Cambridge meeting the Dilboy Post. The University A. A. opened last Sunday with a clean-cut victory over the Lexington T. C., while the Dilboys were taking it on the chin from the Quincy Trojans.

The Dilboys are after revenge. Al Cullen of Fordham and DeFina, a flashy end, have been added to the Dilboy roster. The University A. A., which promises to develop into one of the best semipro groups in the state, has such men as Gilligan, Gamache, O'Connell and Guarnaccia, all formerly of Harvard, Tom Smith of R. C. and Mike Gulian of Brown.

The Quincy Trojans, conquerers of Dilboy, meet a tartar in the Dorchester Militrearns at Fore River Field. The Militreams have their triple-threat, Andy Daley back in the lineup along with A. Beveridge. The Trojans will rely for victory again on Ed Lawrence, former star at Brown.

The Cambridge Catholic Club journeys to Haverhill to meet he Haverhill Pros in the stadium there tomorrow afternoon.

The Gate of Heavens of South Boston travel to South playground Allston, to play the Rivers Ie Club in a Sabbath struggle. The Gate of Heavens will present a strong eleven with Bobby C[illegible] Jimmy Splaine and Captain Wa[illegible] Fuchs, A. McGowan, Byrnes Cronin, Howard Ne[illegible] Norton and G. McGowan will be on the Southie team.

At the Neponset playground the Neponset Town Team will open its season with the Everett City Club. City Councilor A. Bish will kick off.

The Cl[illegible] Post Ho[illegible] Post will meet [illegible] A. A. of Cambridge at [illegible] Memorial Park, Dedham [illegible] are composed of former high [illegible] stars.

FORE RIVER TO PLAY 2 GAMES

A fine soccer program will entertain fans today and tomorrow.

From a local point of view the Fore River eleven of the State league will attract most of the interest, the shipbuilders being scheduled to play the league leading Lusitania Recreation eleven on Fore River Field today, and the newly formed Woburn Civic eleven at the new stadium in Woburn tomorrow.

Exonerate Boxer in Opponent's Death

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 3 (AP)—Kid Leonard, Fort Madison, Ia., boxer, was exonerated today for causing the death of Hildreth (Hy Ilting) Nelson, who dropped dead in the ring in a bout with Leonard, last night.

Nelson's collapse was attributed by the jury to paralysis of the cardiac muscles as a result of strenuous exercise. Leonard was taken into custody last night pending the inquest.

Tufts Eleven Idle; Prepare for Colby

Coach Manly of Tufts will rest his grid machine today and start Monday in preparation for the Colby game a week from today.

The Maine team is not taking lightly by the Jumbo team, as it will have played two games before coming to Medford.

Walker Stops Fontaine

St. Paul, Oct. 4 (AP)—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, knocked out Del Fontaine, Canadian champion, in the fourth round of a scheduled ten-round bout here last night.

Many Highlights of Convention Are Brought to Local Microphone

Many features of the American Legion convention, which starts Monday and extends through Friday, will be transmitted to the radio audiences through WLEX in cooperation with the Boston Evening American.

The parade, which will bring together thousands of men from all over the world to march through Boston streets, will be described by the Boston Evening American announcers, Newcomb F. Thompson and Arthur B. Roberts, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock and continue until the parade has concluded, approximately at 5 p. m.

Delegations from all over the world have flocked to Boston and each unit will afford a different attraction as to regalia and marching style. Thompson and Roberts will describe the different units in much the same fashion as they did during the Tercentenary parade. Military officials and political dignitaries are expected to speak before the WLEX microphone and in addition, the music from the bands as they pass in review will also be heard. Officials of WLEX declare this broadcast will be the longest sustained one in Boston radio history.

From the Boston Evening American studios of WLEX on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, a number of convention highlights will be brought before the microphone. Included among these will be talks by prominent Legionnaires and military aides from all over the world. Entertainment will be supplied by units from different states, consisting of glee clubs, quartets, fife and drum corps, units of field music and choruses. These programs will be heard each of the three evenings between 6 and 7 p. m.

SYMPHONY IN FIRST CONCERT TONIGHT

Symphony Hall has been converted into a radio studio for tonight when the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Serge Koussevitzky conducting, offers its first concert of the season planned exclusively for radio listeners and heard over a nation-wide NBC network with WEEI the local key station.

The concert, which opens the fiftieth season of Symphony, will be heard from the stage of Symphon, hall from 7:30 to 9 and the only visible audience will be the NBC engineers.

Since Koussevitzky has arranged the concert as a contribution to the Tercentenary celebration, he has included in the program the works of three living Massachusetts composers. In the opinion of Koussevitzky, the composition of these men represent some of the best which the country has produced. They are Suite in E Major by Arthur Foote, of Newton; "Lilacs" by Edward Burlingame Hill of Cambridge, and "Poem Fanatique" by Charles Martin Loeffler, of Medford.

Other selections to be played by the orchestra of 110 musicians include Debussey's "Afternoon of a Faun" and Strauss' tone poem "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks."

RADIO Personalities

THE IPANA Troubadours during their long course of broadcasting, have received more than 45,000 requests for their signature song "A Smile" . . . NANCY HOWE of the WNAC Information Service program showed an unromantic part of her nature the other day while broadcasting . . . While the orchestra plays 'Love,' she said, "I will tell you some of the great values at the A. & P. Stores this week" . . . GUY LOMBARDO holds a truly remarkable record. During the last two years he has never used a stock orchestration either for dancing or broadcasting and his orchestra is a great help in offering suggestions for arrangements . . . SAM BREADON, president of the St. Louis Cards probably is a little abashed at presenting each player's family with a radio set so that they might hear the broadcast of the series, now that the broadcast has been an unsuccessful item in baseball's history . . . TED JEWETT has been promoted to the NBC Chicago staff. Has only been an announcer for three months and came to NBC "without experience" . . .

When the king of jazz (Paul Whiteman) goes to Chicago for a two weeks' showing, starting October 10, he and his orchestra will be heard at least seven times weekly over WBBM from 11:15 to 11:45, and many of these programs will be absorbed locally by WNAC. Present plans call for the Whiteman Orchestra on the Chicago variety program each Saturday at 10 p. m.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

We had a corking good theme all picked out to write about for our column today, a nice snappy bit of news, which we know would please you considerable. It will have to keep though, because there are so many things going on in Boston which you should know about we simply can't devote the space to enumerating some of them.

In the first place be advised that the youthful and popular Mickie Alpert, master of ceremonies and leader of the Cocoanut Grove recording and broadcasting orchestra, has signed a contract to broadcast exclusively over the Columbia System, a major coast to coast hookup. The broadcast will go on the air for half hour programs every Tuesday evening at 11:30. The youthful Mickie has been exceptionally successful in the world of entertainment and has acquired a host of friends and admirers.

Listeners in over station WLEX will "meet" and hear another stage star Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock, when Gus Van, celebrated Harmony King, faces the microphone in the studio of the Boston Evening American. Mr. Van comes to Boston on his RKO keith vaudeville tour, but has agreed to entertain the folks in distant places for 15 minutes through the medium of the air.

Music lovers will be entertained tomorrow evening at 9:15 when Madam Louise Homer, world famous American operatic and concert contralto, with Katherine Homer, her daughter, as accompanist and pianiste, will open the sixth fall and winter concert season of the Atwater Kent program over WEEI.

Still another grande-dame will grace a microphone tomorrow. Madame Schumann-Heink, world famous contralto of many years' standing, sings on the Rena Arditi Melodies program, heard each Sunday evening at 8 o'clock over WBZA.

With weeks of intensive labor behind him and with a week of seven more arduous preparation before him, Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, announced today the program his orchestra will play during its first radio concert Sunday, October 12 only four compositions are scheduled for the hour which will be heard over WEEI. The numbers are Jete Deu a Semble by Albeniz; "El Amor Brujo" by Manuel de Falla; "La Cathedrale Engloutie" by Debussey, and the popular "Bolero" by Ravel. From the first two selections we see Stokowski pays homage to the venerable ocean crooner, Caruso.

Captain Batson on Chevrolet Program

The first of the "Chevrolet Chronicles" with Capt. Albert D. Batson of the 5th Regiment relating the events in Chateau Thierry back in 1918, will be brought him the Distinguished Service Cross and the Croix de Guerre and the Naval Cross will go on the air from WBZA at 9:45 tomorrow night at 9:15.

Rickenbacker

The program is sponsored by local Chevrolet dealers, and is the first of a series of weekly broadcasts from WBZA featuring America's great martial figures.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, ace of American aces and himself awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor and many other decorations, will act as master of ceremonies.

Find 12 Skeletons in Texas Gravel Pit

Philadelphia, Oct. 4 (AP)—Henry Sparks 43, other political adherent of Police Magistrate Louis Hamburg, Republican leader was shot to death by a burglar as he was one of his home, Harry Sellers, a burglar was arrested and charged with the shooting.

Medical 'High Court' Excludes Dr. Schmidt

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP)—The doors of the organized medical profession were closed in the face of Dr. Isaac Abt and Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, nonsurgical and advocate of honesty in medical practice, when the House of Delegates of the American Medical Society, by a 3 to 2 vote upheld expulsion of the two physicians from the Medical Society for unethical practice.

Florida Legion Band Thrills New York With Tunes

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Legion band from the city of Miami, Florida turned the Penn Station terminal into a music hall for a few minutes today as it arrived with delegates of the Hibiscus Seeds Post bound for the Legion convention at Boston.

The delegation has arranged a baby alligator to distribute at the convention. The Florida delegation will remain here a day before continuing their journey.

About Rope-Making

A rope-making machine was patented in England in 1784 by Richard Marsh, and another by Edmund Cartwright in 1792. Many improvements have been made since, many of them in the rope industry in America.

Handsome Tutor Taught Her Love as Well as Latin

She Wants to Find If He Cares

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am to pass certain examinations I had to have at least a rudimentary knowledge of Latin. I thought it was going to be a dry as dust but my tutor was young, handsome, delightful—I did that make me know my lessons perfectly, I wonder? I fell deeply in love with him, he's proud of me as a pupil because I passed my exams. but I don't realth know if he cares or not.

Beatrice Fairfax.

He wrote me a letter, semi-professional, but it had several personal questions." In answering these don't you think I could let myself go a little—he amusing just to see if he would write again. Thanks. MARGERY

Dear Margery—Be as sprightly as you can be, my dear Margery. Many a man has fallen for a girl who can write a clever and amusing letter and I believe if your tutor wasn't looking for some such treat he wouldn't have asked the questions. Best luck to you

Wonders If She Has Forgotten Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 18 and have been in love with a boy of 20 for two years. I have never gone out with him as my folks did not approve. But as I am employed in an ice cream store he is always over. I see him every day. The family sent me away for four months to school to him, but it didn't help me any. I worrying me is this — about a month ago the folks agreed to let me go with him, and we've been so much of each other during that time, that it seems to me he care as much as I once did. is it possible that I am forgetting him, or don't I care any more? When he talks of going away I want to hold him. ANXIOUS.

Dear Anxious—You are too young and inexperienced to know your own mind at present. When your family didn't approve of you to go out with this boy, it seemed the most desirable thing in the world to you. They have now given their consent, and you find no longer interest you so much as when he was forbidden. Yet—when he talks of going away you want to hold him—don't you? So that what you want is something you cant have, and till your young men in a little more mature it would be very foolish to think seriously of anyone. Other girls parents might realize a very valuable lesson from this girls letter. Isn't it the forbidden which always attracts?

He May See Her in the Future

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 24 and met a young man about a month ago. We made a social call for home. We made a date, but he didn't keep it. Now I have received a letter from him with an apology for disappointing me that evening. But he is not asking me for another date, only he said, he may see me again in the future. He never gave his address to me so I cannot write him me if it is correct to answer his letter and how soon? AWAITING BETSY.

Dear Betsy. When a young man says he may see you in the future there is nothing for her to do but to forget him as soon as possible. He doesn't even say he hopes to see you or he will see you but he may see you. That is a pale way of dropping the acquaintance. You have a right to be angry with him for thus making you his fool but as he is not worth while we say forget him.

"HONOR THY FATHER AND MOTHER—"

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

"HONOR THY Father and Mother"—not that your days may be "long"—but that those days may be without regret.

Perhaps there is good news for Fathers and Mothers tucked away in the florid and flinky pages of Fashion changes. There is a whisper that good manners toward the stranger, and even the home folks, are coming back again.

Those of the old guard, whose "thank you" and "please" persist to the end of life, for whom getting up and giving both Father and Mother a chair when the "old ones" enter the room is as much routine manners as passing the sugar, this will be something to hold hot fires over—for they miss 'em, they do. They miss good manners. And good manners even of the letter have been insolently absent from the family table of virtues for a long time.

It isn't the unlettered, and the gaudy, and the neglected boy and girl alone who is guilty, it seems to me that the higher and the thinner the upper crust the more invisible the manners become. The lady who can stare the hardest, forget the effensest to be courteous, say the most tactless things, treat all the world in the most casual ungraceful, informally impolite manner, is that person who perhaps what in other days would have been the "place of a lady." Do you know many gracefully polite young persons these last few years? And has the social "utterance" of middle age been very much of a mark to aim at? Non-Non—the fact is that it has been fashionable to be bad mannered for some years, my friend.

BUT long skirts are in. And the studious one knows that fashions in dress and manners have always had a pers ir identity. With one kind of clothes has always seemed to go a certain kind of manners. When clothes change—manners change. With extremely short clothes and Prohibition came extremely rude manners toward in mates and own families. Maybe with the passing of short frocks and the possible passing of the sheer armless fashion, that is only one on the surface will go impertinent manners, too.

Maybe now that Father does not have to worry over long feminine legs draped over just anything no matter how high the object was and Mother does not have to signal frantically across the room that eight inches ABOVE pinkings-top was showing there will be a chair offered by son or daughter and no crushing rejoinders such as this "OH, POP YOU'RE NOTHING BUT AN OLD FOGEY!"

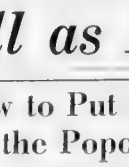
Good news if true The people who stand out today —are those whose good manners we remember, specially, to their "own." —NELL BRINKLEY

How to Put Pop Into the Popovers

By MARTHA LEE,
Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of Over 37,000

DID YOU see the moving picture "A Way to a Man's Heart," which was taken in the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery down at 5 Winthrop sq.? If you did you know what a wonderful thing it is to know the making of pop overs. If you don't know what puff opens

I do think that popovers are a happy change from the morning muffins and biscuits but all too often the heartbreaking failure of the popover as a country is all to be conquered.



Martha Lee

As a matter of fact, the simple question of oven temperature will save all difficulties.

The ingredients for popovers are simply milk, flour, eggs and salt, without any leavening. It is absolutely important to have a pyping hot oven in order to make sure of your popovers popping and then, too, you should have heavy popover pans, either custom or cast iron ones, or even gasss or brown earthenware custard cups

The oven should be preheated at 450 F for at least 10 minutes While the pans are heating, prepare the popover batter in this way. Place 2 eggs in a bowl and beat slightly. Measure 1 cup of milk and 1 cup of sifted bread flour and ½ tsp. of salt. Add the flour and salt alternately to the beaten eggs and milk, the latter a little at a time. When all the ingredients are together, beat hard with the egg beater until the batter is smooth and full of bubbles. Remove the heated pans from the oven, grease them thoroughly and fill them two-thirds full with the popover batter. Place the filled pans immediately in a preheated oven and bake for 20 minutes at 450 F. Then lower the temperature to 350 F. and continue the baking for 15 minutes when the popovers should be done. Remove them from the oven, take from the pans and serve at once They should be a delicate brown, at least double their height, very light and hollow inside. They should be served immediately after baking. This will make about six popovers of the custard cup size, but they will be whopp-pers' Some people like to use these popovers as a dessert with a filling or a sauce. Others add ½ cup of chopped cheese to the batter, but I've not had very good luck with these cheese popovers. However, whole wheat flour can be used if preferred.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

That 'Tired' Feeling Is a Warning

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

IT ISN'T a good sign to be tired all the time. It isn't natural to get up in the morning tired as you were the night before. You just cannot compete with the rest of the world when you are tired. It is a dangerous daze before you, when you are just able to drag yourself around.

Dr. Copeland

There are plenty of reasons for these symptoms. The condition often comes from lack of proper sleep and rest. It may be that you keep awake, start awake like nervousness and worried about something. Of course if you cannot sleep, you are going to be tired the next day.

Perhaps no two things have caused so much ill health as chronic constipation. They are the most outstanding causes of that "tired feeling."

The first thing to do in a case like this is to consult your doctor. He will find the cause of your trouble. Maybe you have to change your habits, maybe the entire system and your point of view. Maybe you have to change. Then the cure is prepared.

When you are tired and run down you should give yourself an unusual quantity of rest and sleep. It is only in sleep and rest that the nerves, and muscles make up for the energy spent. You must help nature do her work of recuperation by living a simple life, eating simple food, and if you can get away for a change and relaxation do so by all means.

Third Degree by Police Fails to Break Cathie's Testimony

CHAPTER 39

PAPERS SHOW Lee mistakes.

"Listy! Listy!"

"All about the murder!"

"MRS. FARNSWORTH MURDERED. SEVEN MILLION-AIRES SIN AWERS."

"Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth, beautiful 25-year-old widow of the slain millionaire was formally charged with murder today. She is being held in the city jail on a warrant sworn to by the dead man's son by a former marriage, Chester T. Farnsworth, one of this city."

"In a sensational interview with newspaper men today, Farnsworth stated that he had long foreseen the tragedy, and had repeatedly warned the aged millionaire. The elder Farnsworth, he states, had finally listened to him and agreed to divorce his beautiful young wife on the grounds of infidelity. He had hired another disputers would have been filed, and the will leaving half of the $7,000,000 estate to Mrs Farnsworth, destroyed.

Tells of Visit

"It was to discuss the matter of the will and divorce that he went to the family home 2950 Pressidio Terrace shortly after 7 o'clock on the night of the murder, Farnsworth states. He left his wife at the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Bull, who reside in a penthouse on the roof of the Hittinger Apartments. A party was in progress there. It was his intention, he says, to go quietly to his father's room. These nocturnal visits between father and son were a regular thing due to insomnia on the part of the elder Farnsworth and the antigon bun on the young wife's part. The Farnsworths occupied separate suites, and as young Farnsworth possessed a key to his he was able to go and come undiscovered.

Body Found

"Coming into the house on the fatal night, Farnsworth says he heard a commotion in the servants' quarters in the basement, learned that the several Chinese who made up the household staff had been aroused and alarmed by noises and cries upstairs.

"Accompanied by the boss Chinaman he made his way rapidly upstairs and into his father's room. The dead man lay with his head shattered from a shot which must have been fired with the butt of the gun directly against the back of his head. The pistol, his own property, was on the floor.

"Rushing at once to notify his young stepmother, Farnsworth found her room empty, and repeated calls failed to bring her in his aid, Farnsworth states.

"While he telephoned headquarters the servants found her in the maid's room on the third floor.

"Farnsworth's accusation, coming immediately upon the coroner's finding of death due to a pistol shot from the hands of an unknown person, threw police circles into excitement.

"At the city prison, Mrs Farnsworth, young and beautiful widow of the millionaire, faces charges with the heinous crime, struck to her original story that she found the body short-ly before 2 o'clock that night, and was in no way implicated in the killing.

"After a severe grilling by Inspectors Horgan and Hall well, Mrs. Farnsworth's story remains unshaken. She protests her innocence, declaring that there was a quarrel of any kind, and refuses to discuss her alleged affair with the unnamed man whom young Farnsworth implicates.

"You might as well make a clean breast of it," Inspector Horgan told Cathie. "They'll have the whole thing before night. It would be to your advantage to beat them to it. Don't be afraid. We know there were extenuating circumstances. He didn't treat you very well, did he?"

Cathie lifted her eyes heavy as lead.

"No, he did treat me well, and I have made a clean breast of it," she said wearily. "I have told you everything I know. Do you want me to make things up? Tell you I did it when I didn't? Tell you someone else did—when I don't know?"

But you know what people will think? You know what'll swing if you don't confess?"

Mr. was a sad voice. Inspector Bidwell was shaking a finger at her. "Gosden Moore will hang. Think of that, an innocent man! And you won't confess to save him!

Nightdress Found

"But I did. I've told you everything I know. And I told you he went home, long before the shot."

"Of course there he went home But isn't it peculiar that he hasn't come forward? Isn't it peculiar that he hasn't been heard of since—"

"I'm so sleepy!" she wailed "You make me sick, all of you! I was talking. You ought to pun one of those talking machines. You're worse than Mrs. Mrs—"

She was going to say Mrs. Hopper but she never got it. Sat. Down went her head. Cathie was asleep. Asleep sitting up, in a cell in the women's quarters in the city jail.

"I think she's innocent," said Inspector Horgan.

"Beginning to think so myself."

Too bad that Cathie was so asleep and didn't hear them. When she opened her eyes two minutes later with gentlemen had come to a decision to change their minds.

Cathie's story remained to all it was found that afternoon

Hero Worship of Son for Father

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

YOU MEN who are fathers probably are too busy to realize just how much hero worship can be packed into the nature of your young son. Or perhaps you've forgotten how, when you were that age, you picked out some grown man as your ideal, and put him on a pedestal that was higher than the moon and Mars combined. Maybe it was your father, maybe it was some big brother, maybe it was some uncle, or some friend of the family, or some athletic hero, or some actor, or some author, or some statesman, or some soldier, or some sailor, or some aviator, or some explorer, or some scientist, or some inventor, or some author, or some musician, or some artist, or some poet, or some philosopher, or some scholar, or some teacher, or some preacher, or some doctor, or some lawyer, or some judge, or some jury, or some policeman, or some fireman, or some mailman, or some milkman, or some iceman, or some coalman, or some grocer, or some butcher, or some baker, or some candlestick maker, or some tinker, or some tailor, or some soldier, or some sailor, or some beggar man, or some thief, or some liar, or some cheat, or some gambler, or some drunkard, or some bum, or some tramp, or some hobo, or some—

Constance Cameron

Well, you get the idea. You probably had your own hero worship, and you probably remember how much it meant to you when your father or your big brother or your uncle or your friend of the family or your athletic hero or your actor or your author or your musician or your artist or your statesman or your soldier or your sailor or your aviator or your explorer or your scientist or your inventor or your author or your musician or your artist or your poet or your philosopher or your scholar or your teacher or your preacher or your doctor or your lawyer or your judge or your jury or your policeman or your fireman or your mailman or your milkman or your iceman or your coalman or your grocer or your butcher or your baker or your candlestick maker or your tinker or your tailor or your soldier or your sailor or your beggar man or your thief or your liar or your cheat or your gambler or your drunkard or your bum or your tramp or your hobo or your—

BUSINESS BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN INDUSTRY

Our Leaders Are on Trial; Suggestions

Should Heed Rockefeller's Warning; Big Buying Campaign Urged

— By B. C. FORBES —

New York, Oct. 4—I wonder if the men who run things in this country are conscious that they are on trial?

Never before have so many letters come to this column criticizing the inaction of America's leaders—government leaders, financial leaders, industrial leaders, business leaders.

B. C. Forbes

If such criticism is warranted, it behooves our leaders to convince the public that its judgment is entirely wrong.

Unless something is done to change the present strongly-existing tide of public opinion concerning the powers that be in this country, a veritable "Guilty" may be definitely pronounced.

Suggestions galore pour in, some of them sensible, most of them fantastic. Those appealed to, range from families of small means to automobile owners, merchandise buyers, employers, two wealthy steel citizens (Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Jr.) and, of course, government heads.

The one overwhelming impression created by the flood of communications is that more people than ever before feel very bitterly that the higher-ups in the land are sitting together too complacent, too indifferent, too inactive, too willing to let things slide downhill without making any heroic, self-sacrificing, patriotic, painstaking endeavor to stop the spread of unemployment, depression and distress.

Leaders tell me privately, "artificial attempts to interfere with 'the economic processes now at work' would only make matters worse."

If that is their conviction, and I believe it is, why do they not take the time and trouble to explain to the public in simple language why they feel as they do, why they are sure their attitude is unimpeachably sound?

Gil John D. Rockefeller learned —rather late in life—this principle? wisdom expressed to me): 'Next to doing the right thing, the most important thing in this world is to let the public know that you are doing the right thing.'

Will our foremost men of affairs, our largest employers, our most influential bankers, our leading industrialists ponder that Rockefeller injunction?

Extracts from letters offering suggestions:

"Everywhere I go I urge everyone to spend 50 cents extra per week. We know 3,000,000 people who could spend this extra 50 cents, and so add $17,000,000 each week to business income. This would mean about $60,000 people could be given work at $25 a week."

* * *

"A legend of war time tells how the chief engineers of all the great aeroplane companies in America were locked in a room in Washington and were not permitted to come out until they had pooled their secrets and released their patents and had collaborated to produce the Liberty Motor. Cannot the same plan be used now? Would it not be possible to bring together the chief engineers in the field of finance and industry and let them pool their secrets and collaborate to produce a plan for setting people free from the recurring cycles of economic depression?"

"Is it possible the men with money were the first to show a yellow streak? Wherever a few men are gathered together, whether in smoker, club or hotel, ask the first cripe hanger if he bought a new car this year. Five out of six will say 'NO.' Just try it. There will adult in the end they could, without endangering their financial standing. What would it mean to business if you could secure the co-operation of Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs to canvas their members, make a name of it and have that could really afford to buy a new car do so now?"

"Bring mind the so-called leaders or captains of industry have degenerated to a multitude of shrimp-spined weaklings. While I was sitting at a buyer's desk the shipping clerk came to the buyer five days before to report that they were entirely out of five different items which they had paid their salesmen to go out and sell. His explanation to me was that the president had instructed him not to buy. That is commercial suicide.

"Recently a circus was in town. The tent was crowded. After five show it remained full.

"Ser offered fountain pens, harmon leaflets and other items at prices that could have been duplicated at any store in town, but the people actually fought to spend their money—to the extent of over $500.

"I believe you can start a buying epidemic. There are 123,000,000 people in the United States. If each family would buy one bag of sugar at the present below-cost-of-production price, it would help to start something.

N. E. FARMERS HANDLE OWN FINANCING

By FRANK B. MELOON

Announcement was recently made from Washington that the various Federal Reserve Banks were in sound condition to finance the handling of the crops. That may have had some meaning in the 11 districts outside of New England, but a high official of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank tells us that in New England the farmers are able to handle their own financing. The local Federal Reserve Bank, in other words, doesn't have to finance New England farmers in connection with handling their harvest.

Furthermore, the Boston Federal Reserve Bank does not employ its funds by sending them to other districts for crop handling.

Albert H. Wiggin, former Boston banker, now Chase National leader, is prominent in the negotiations for unification of New York's rapid transit lines. Mr. Wiggin was born in Medfield, the son of Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Wiggin. He was educated in the Dwight and English high schools in Boston. He entered the old Commonwealth Bank after graduating, and later became assistant cashier of the Third National Bank. At 29 he became vice-president of the Eliot National Bank.

Orgy of spending by states, cities and towns outside of New England reported checked some time ago does not appear to us to be showing convincing signs of exhaustion. In the nine months period ending September 30th of this year state and municipal borrowing amounted to $1,037,496,468, as compared with $767,564,000 for corresponding period in 1929, according to The Daily Bond Buyer of New York.

During September 32 states and municipalities reported to The Daily Bond Buyer that bond elections resulted in the authorization of $8,000,000, as compared with only $3,369,000 during August of this year.

* * *

A great deal is written by economists about the need of taxation with stress laid upon the federal taxes. Mostly they ignore or are unaware of the fact that about two people out of every hundred pay federal income taxes and the percentage is probably diminishing. The federal income tax is of outstanding importance in such discussions, because it totals up to 63.8 per cent of all the sources of taxation for the United States government.

This column called attention to a symposium conducted by the London Herald as to what constitutes an ideal income. Distinguished Britishers place the figure at between $2000 and $2500. A reader, a physician writes to say:

"Several years ago the Massachusetts Industrial Commission, after an investigation into living conditions of average families in some of our big cities gave out some very helpful figures. They found in essence that those who paid but 20 per cent of their income for food would live within their means and save money. Those who paid 25 per cent could live but not save. Those who paid 33 1-3 per cent were in trouble and those who paid 50 per cent were in desperate circumstances. The wise business man will even find that 20 per cent too high and would give a figure of 10 per cent.

"Many families from time to time have been helped by having their attention called to the ratio of rent to income as given by the commission through a New York physician who frequently found that the cause of his patients' illness was due to the enormous struggle to live, brought on by the improper ratio of rent to income or income to rent."

Canadian Pacific Plans Construction

Canadian Pacific Railway plans a two-year construction plan for one year, according to E. W. Beatty, president and chairman of the road.

Construction will include 160 miles of new branch lines in the West, 50 miles of track laying and 250 miles of track relaying, he said.

Program involves the outlay of about $14,000,000 and is counted on to assist in relieving unemployment, it was announced.

The same families could easily afford to buy 100 or 200 pounds of flour, now very cheap. Also five or ten pounds of raisins or grapes or prunes. Many purchases could be taken off the market within 60 days if the buyer campaign was conducted."

Who will set the ball rolling?

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Generally speaking, technical conditions have warranted some further betterment in quotations, even large-scale bear operators contending that point. Most of the necessitous liquidation has been completed with results on prices recently witnessed. It will take aggressive and persistent demand for stocks to sustain price improvement and this presumably will not develop until more marked business betterment occurs. Nevertheless, considerable such buying will hardly be delayed until the turn in public psychology recognized.

Bull Pool in Wheat Active

The newly organized "bull pool" in the stock exchange was in evidence yesterday afternoon, and it was reported that arrangements had been practically concluded for the consummation of the merger. Actual announcement, however, is not expected to be made until after the week-end. The merger is all probability will be effected through an exchange of stock, Gillette, it is understood, plans to offer 3½ cumulative preferred to Auto Strop holders on a share-for-share basis.

Consolidated Gas Action Is Good

Consolidated Gas this week reflected the impressive accumulation that has repeatedly taken place in that issue whenever it approached par recently.

Vanadium Back to Former Level

Only speculative interest naturally attaches to Vanadium, but it will be interesting to observe whether aggressive sponsorship develops now that the stock is back to the level from which it started its last spurt.

Better Demand for Kennecott

Although the stock failed to respond much, it was reported that a more impressive demand has appeared for Kennecott. The buying which is coming into the stock is unconcerned over immediate prospects.

Investment Buying Is in Drug, Inc.

Firmness displayed by Drug, Inc., recently reflects inclusion of this issue in many additional investment lists.

Radio Covering Nearly Completed

Several large short commitments in Radio have been covered and to this extent the stock's technical position is weakened. The one factor favoring the bulls is recognition that the fourth quarter usually is the best for the company, but for those partial to Radio it would seem that its performance B has much greater appeal than the common.

Active Support of Foster-Wheeler

Completion of the International Combustion absorption will probably be signal for more aggressive sponsoring of Foster-Wheeler marketwise.

Woolworth Sees Better Sales

Price betterment in Woolworth has reflected favorable buying induced by knowledge that the company sales report will make very pleasing reading for stockholders. Gillette Safety Razor are said to have organized a new "bull pool" in the stock due to the progress being made in plans to merge with Auto Strop. Directors of Gillette held a special meeting in Boston yesterday afternoon, and it was reported that arrangements had been practically concluded for the consummation of the merger. Actual announcement, however, is not expected to be made until after the week-end. The merger is all probability will be effected through an exchange of stock, Gillette, it is understood, plans to offer 3½ cumulative preferred to Auto Strop holders on a share-for-share basis.

The newly organized "bull pool" in the stock exchange was in evidence yesterday afternoon, and it was reported that arrangements had been practically concluded for the consummation of the merger. Actual announcement, however, is not expected to be made until after the week-end. The merger is all probability will be effected through an exchange of stock, Gillette, it is understood, plans to offer 3½ cumulative preferred to Auto Strop holders on a share-for-share basis.

Consolidated Gas Action Is Good

Consolidated Gas this week reflected the impressive accumulation that has repeatedly taken place in that issue whenever it approached par recently.

Vanadium Back to Former Level

Only speculative interest naturally attaches to Vanadium, but it will be interesting to observe whether aggressive sponsorship develops now that the stock is back to the level from which it started its last spurt.

Better Demand for Kennecott

Although the stock failed to respond much, it was reported that a more impressive demand has appeared for Kennecott. The buying which is coming into the stock is unconcerned over immediate prospects.

Investment Buying Is in Drug, Inc.

Firmness displayed by Drug, Inc., recently reflects inclusion of this issue in many additional investment lists.

Radio Covering Nearly Completed

Several large short commitments in Radio have been covered and to this extent the stock's technical position is weakened. The one factor favoring the bulls is recognition that the fourth quarter usually is the best for the company, but for those partial to Radio it would seem that its performance B has much greater appeal than the common.

Active Support of Foster-Wheeler

Completion of the International Combustion absorption will probably be signal for more aggressive sponsoring of Foster-Wheeler marketwise.

Woolworth Sees Better Sales

Price betterment in Woolworth has reflected favorable buying induced by knowledge that the company sales report will make very pleasing reading for stockholders.

"M's" Directors Are Undecided

Montgomery-Ward slumped to a new low for the year on the sales report and natural concern over the dividend, danger of which is indicated by the 11 per cent yield. Although the company is strong in cash resources, its directors are still undecided whether or not to continue the current dividend. A possible compromise was suggested, though lowering, rather than omission entirely, of the payment.

Fox Hit by Bears' "Little White Lies"

Fox was heavily sold by the same bear crowd which recently has been so unfavorable but unfounded rumors concerning the company's status, like the "Little White Lies" of Wall Street.

Attempt was made to explain the selling as a movement from England, but it was definitely ascertained that no block of Fox shares is held in that country. The sponsors for Fox are fully aware of the source of the selling and are confident they capable of overcoming any bear pressure.

Capital Tax Cut Plan Is Approved

President Hoover's comments on the capital tax aroused considerable favorable comment in important financial circles. Reduction at this time, it is felt, would liquidate much of the capital that is tied up at present.

General Motors to Earn Dividend

Recent accumulation of General Motors has been based on the knowledge that eventually the company would be sufficient to meet dividend requirements this year. Interests closely affiliated with the management of the company predict that earnings within their means and save money. Those who paid 25 per cent could live but not save. Those who paid 33 1-3 per cent were in trouble and those who paid 50 per cent were in desperate circumstances. The wise business man will even find that 20 per cent too high and would give a figure of 10 per cent.

"Many families from time to time have been helped by having their attention called to the ratio of rent to income as given by the commission through a New York physician who frequently found that the cause of his patients' illness was due to the enormous struggle to live, brought on by the improper ratio of rent to income or income to rent."

Canadian Pacific Plans Construction

Canadian Pacific Railway plans a two-year construction plan for one year, according to E. W. Beatty, president and chairman of the road.

Construction will include 160 miles of new branch lines in the West, 50 miles of track laying and 250 miles of track relaying, he said.

Program involves the outlay of about $14,000,000 and is counted on to assist in relieving unemployment, it was announced.

The same families could easily afford to buy 100 or 200 pounds of flour, now very cheap. Also five or ten pounds of raisins or grapes or prunes. Many purchases could be taken off the market within 60 days if the buyer campaign was conducted."

Farm Implement Merger Rumored

Good buying was reported in Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement, coincident with reports that the company would merge with another company in the farm implement industry.

Public Service to Expand Further

Public Service of New Jersey has completed extensive expansion program under consideration which involves the extension of that company's activities in the Greater New York. Through its high-power transmission lines the company already has connections in this locality, and it is understood that the management plans to increase the scope of its operations there in order to take advantage of the further electrification of the New York Central lines. Other plans of the company include the extension of its activities in territory already served by Public Service.

BOSTON STOCK PRICES ARE RUN UPWARD

The price trend for the week-end on the Boston Stock Exchange was mostly upward for the leaders.

Economy Stores rose 2 points at 28. Chicago Junction was up 3¾ at 155½.

Boston Elevated issues continued to show market strength. The common was up 1½ at 79½ and the first preferred at 106½, added 1¼.

Boston & Albany advanced a point at 192. Boston Personal Property lifted 1½ at 68.

Atchison lifted 1¼ at 210½. New England Telephone was up a point at 145.

Railway & Light Securities lost a point at 68. Nash was down 1½ at 51. Greenfield Tap & Die sold down 1½ at 16. Gillette was off 1⅝ at 35½.

American Telephone met some selling on reports of a poor year, and was down 3⅞ at 203¾. American Telephone officials say to date the company has not been served with any paper in a patent suit by Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Co. Chicago, and they deny any infringements on the Kellogg patents.

Agreement was reached between German treasury and Lee, Higginson & Co. on the principal points on the proposed loan to the German Government. Total cost will be approximately 6 per cent.

Completion of negotiations for $125,000,000 German loan will be followed by prompt offerings in the international markets, according to banking house reports which look for the offering next week. The loan will consist of six months' notes with three renewal clauses or that the aggregate life of the notes may extend to two years. 4½ per cent coupon rate is suggested by some bankers.

Business Gain Is More Than Seasonal

New York, Oct. 4—Though still disappointing in its speed, gradual improvement in the general level of business activity increases, if slightly more than the seasonal rate, says The Business Week in its report issued this week ending October 4. The seasonal rise in industrial activity is still irregular and uncertain, but in general trade and in building it is more definite.

The Business Index for the week ended September 27, computed from latest statistics available, shows a further slow rise from 83.8 per cent to 86, which compares with 109.2 per cent in the corresponding week last year.

Baking Industry Status Improved

Earnings of Continental Baking Corp. and subsidiaries for 12 weeks ended Sept. 13 last, reveal both the improved status of the baking industry and the benefits of the retrenchment therein of this company. Net sales were $1,351,812 or $2.05 a share on 281,813 class A shares actually outstanding after preferred dividends, which is comparable with last year due to the fact that a year ago the report was for 17 weeks ended Oct. 15.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

STOCKS CLOSE WEEK WITH DECIDED WEARINESS

New York, Oct. 4—The stock market ended a turbulent week with decided weariness today.

Trading was extremely dull, and the gains of the previous session were not maintained, as bears took advantage of weekend profit taking to seek out soft spots.

Pivotal shares were in moderate demand at times, but sagged substantially in the final transactions.

LOSSES REPLACE GAINS

A long list of important stocks closed 1 to 2 points lower, and a few shares finished 3 to 7 lower. During the first hour, several issues had shown temporary gains of a point or two. Final quotations were in the main fractionally under the day's lowest.

Total transactions aggregated 900,000 shares. The closing tone was heavy.

U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Sears Roebuck and New York Central lost about 2 points, the last-named recording its lowest price in three years. American Telephone and Allied Chemical dropped 2 points, and Eastman Kodak tumbled 7.

Shares losing a point or more off included American Can, Standard of N. J., and General Electric.

Radio was off only a fraction. Trans-America was steady and Fox Film and Warner Bros. finished fractionally higher.

Although the extreme pessimism of early in the week had largely vanished, business news was not of a character to inspire much bullishness.

TO CHECK RUMORS

News that the stock exchange had requested members for copies of all messages sent over their wires during the last fortnight relating to the financial condition of members was regarded as indicating a determination to check dissemination of irresponsible bear rumors, but failed to influence the market.

Reports from the steel industry failed to promise any resumption of the acceleration of output which was checked a few days ago. Estimates from the Youngstown area indicated that Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet would make little change in scheduled mill rates, but Carnegie would reduce operations from 80 to 60 per cent of capacity, reducing the average in the three area to 68 per cent, against 84 this week.

A reduction of 50 cents a ton in the prices of steel scrap at Chicago and a cut in lead prices from 4.35 cents to 4.25 cents a pound by American Smelting were other cheerless developments of the day.

Latest news from the building industry, however, was a little more cheerful. F. W. Dodge Corp. reported that contracts awarded, in the 37 States east of the Rockies, for residential building, which has been in a decided slump, held close in September to the highest level since May.

Total contracts for the month, however, sagged 5 per cent from August, and were 25 per cent below September of last year.

Reports from the radio industry continued in the more cheerful vein noted during recent weeks. Radio Corp. reported September sales about 25 per cent above a year ago.

Merchandise sales generally during September, however, have shown little improvement, with the extremely hot weather having been an oppressive factor.

The Reuegie chain reported a drop of nearly 6 per cent from the same period of last year, against an aggregate decline for the first nine months of only 3 per cent.

Monetary conditions were expected by banking circles to continue easy next week, although the effects of the month-end settlements may cause a little temporary stiffening.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds you should get unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries, with stamp, to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Replies are made by mail only.

NO ADVICE.

A. T.—Since last December I have had on margin 50 shares International Telephone & Telegraph at 84¾. Do you advise switching to another stock? If so, what?

Ans.—Your problem involves speculation. We cannot advise you. It is thought likely 1930 earnings for International Telephone & Telegraph will just about cover a $2 dividend. Net income for the first six months amounted to $1.04 a share. This contrasted with $1.56 for corresponding period of 1929. Earnings of $3.01 a share in 1929 compared with $3.43 in 1925 and $3.69 in 1927. Dividends of $6 a share annually were paid on the old stock from 1920. The current rate has been maintained since three-for-one split May, 1929. At recent levels the stock had taken a severe drop from the price at which you bought. It is questionable when a recovery can be achieved.

STOCKS NOW.

Mrs. M. K., Lynn—I am a widow, supporting a son, age 11. I own stocks and bonds valued from 3,333 cents to 5,225 cents a pound by American Smelting were other cheerless developments of the day.

PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

What is the waterfront doing to entertain the visiting Legion delegates?

We understand the visitors will be given an opportunity of viewing "Old Ironsides" in the navy yard, but there are other attractions which might well be utilized.

Hundreds of the women in the party are from the West and have never seen the Atlantic Ocean. They would enjoy spending a couple of hours on one of the Nantasket boats, or a full day on a fishing trip down the harbor.

Many delegates would be delighted if some of the steamship lines tied up a couple of boats in the harbor as "floating hotels."

The chamber of commerce in Gloucester has engaged the auxiliaries Myrtle and Myrtle 2d to take delegates to the fishermen's race. The Legion post in that city is providing a free clambake.

champion golfer of the Foreign Commerce Club.

At the first annual tournament at the Franklin Country Club, this capable executive won both the gross and the net prizes, with 83 and 66. He had something of a jump on the others, as this is his home course, but he made birdies and eagles on several holes.

The tourney was a success and will be repeated each year. Prizes are to be awarded at the next club meeting on Oct. 21 at the Hotel Brunswick.

Robert Rae of Rone & Downe won the blind bogey with 87, while George White turned in the "consolation" score of 142.

ARMY EASE NO. 3

Third in the daily series of articles explaining the Army Base Terminal, is one dealing with the general administration of the terminal, by the Boston Port Authority, this terminal is on a temporary lease to the Bay State Shipping Co., by the Merchant Fleet Corp. This fleet organization consists of a number of shipping experts to carry out policies determined by the U. S. Shipping Board.

The lease is held up by the corporation and subsequently approved by the full board, which holds the fleet corporation responsible for seeing that the terms of this lease are not violated. In future leases of this character different items in the lease will be discussed.

REDS IN ACTION

On the eve of the local conference on Monday between the longshoremen's union and the steamship agents Communists are reported to be making themselves troublesome on the local docks.

These "Reds" are distributing only literature in workers, depicting the position of the longshoremen's union against this practice. The Reds are to be asked to enforce the law against passing out handbills without a license, according to police officials.

The 10:30 o'clock conference Monday will be in the Flour and Grain Exchange building.

sisters and their mothers at minimum wages for maximum hours. A strange mixture of aggressive charity and uncharitable justice was Sam. To him a dollar had six pennies pasted on it—the interest. What he did with it after he got it was another matter. He put it away, yes, but he demanded that he get it first. He done that by his beautiful playgrounds, then battled through three courts against his tax assessment.

Suave and Smooth

J. Hutchins Johnstone, attorney for large corporations, strode in as though to address a hostile jury—suave, sure, smooth. Howard Payne Rymph, professor of economics at the U., and Dr. Olaf Norstrom, noted surgeon, completed the body. And around them all were the newspapermen.

The Mayor rose when they entered. He had fortified himself with two shots of Scotch and 6 cocktails—he would cope with everything and admit nothing.

"Mr. Mayor," opened up Sam Mandelbaum, "you have doubtless anticipated the purpose of this visit. We have not come with any requests. We feel it is time to make demands. Last night's outrages—"

"The women of this city, for whom I speak—" cut in Mrs. Taylor. Mandelbaum frowned.

"Mr. Mayor," he continued, "we are all paying exorbitant taxes to maintain a municipal government and a competent police force. Now we must conclude that the police are either entirely inefficient or are suborned by the criminal elements. We have no further confidence in the department. We, therefore, have drawn a resolution calling on you to ask the governor for militia to take over the city government and vive its protection. If not granted these desperadoes or bring them to justice."

The mayor cleared his throat.

"Gentlemen, and you, madam," with a bow to Mrs. Taylor, "the occurrences of last night were unforeseen and unprecedented. Had we any warning of such possibilities we would have been prepared and would have handled the situation satisfactorily. We are not in connivance with the underworld, and so we were not apprised of any such a plot. Just what the gesture signified—except a protest against the police—I wish which we have been fighting every known law-breaker—we have not yet determined.

To Take Action

"However, my intelligence squad is at work and I will have the full report shortly. The moment I have the facts I shall take action. To call out troops now would only disgrace the city far more. I must be permitted to answer this surprise attack. My chief of police assures me we will have everything in hand, cover against any further chance of such crimes within the day. Am I right?"

The Chief nodded.

"In 24 hours," the Mayor added, "we will not only have everything under quiet, but probably have behind the bars the principal perpetrators of these deeds which we would not hesitate to execute. I ask you to withhold your resolution for that length of time."

Mandelbaum called the committee into an anteroom. The Chief tiptoed to the door and put his ear to his post. Mandelbaum, alone, returned.

"Very well" he answered, 24 hours. We don't want to take hasty judgment."

"Thanks," acknowledged the Mayor. "We will neither rest nor sleep."

Mandelbaum made his exit.

"Now you may relax," he chided.

The Mayor walked to the window and looked out. He lit a cigar, returned, threw in another log and said:

"I'm — if I know," he said.

In Goldie Gorio's headquarters, too, there was activity.

Business was as usual, almost, despite the desperate enterprises of the past night. Collections were coming in from the late operations of crap games, beer distributors, houses of hilarity, speakeasies and even more orderly businesses from which the Gorio mob had declared itself entitled to its share of the rod and acid of the pineapple.

Goldie Angry

But routine commerce lacked the punch today. No one knew what was in the back of Goldie's head, but they all understood him well enough to know he hadn't thrown that spectacular barrage just to see the fireworks; they must have some big offensive to follow up with.

The incarceration of Polack Annie, without notice to Goldie, her being held incommunicado like some trucker without drag, his departure from City Hall Friday night with rage — such things portended a showdown or Gorio had changed his nature.
